Rue du Consulat:
An Improvement Noted

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Some time ago a complaint was made through this column with regard to night soil carts being routed down Rue du Consulat at an hour which greatly interfered with morning traffic. More recently another correspondent used your column to complain about the early morning watering of this same street, making it hazardous to drive along Rue du Consulat.

The writer is neither of the parties mentioned above; however, it appears to be human nature to throw "brickbats." In coming to my office and returning home, it is my custom to use Rue du Consulat two to four times daily and I am wondering if either of the two mentioned correspondents have noticed that both of their complaints have apparently born fruit. The writer has not noticed any night soil cart traffic on this street for some time past, and since the complaint about watering has appeared in this column. I also note this has been dicontinued and I think everyone who uses this street regularly should thank the French Municipal Council for taking such prompt action.

With no thought of passing out "bouquets," I would also like to express my thanks to the French Municipal Council for the manner in which traffic is controlled in the French Concession and the invariably courteous treatment extended to motorists by their traffic officers. This courtesy is so markedly different in comparison to that of the traffic officers in the International Settlement, that it will be noticeable to anyone who has occasion to drive on both French Concession and International Settlement streets. In the former, as mentioned, the traffic officers extend themselves to be courteous, whereas traffic officers in the International Settlement appear to extend themselves to be discourteous.

Shanghai, Nov. 2

Municipal Orchestra:
A Question of Prices

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—The Municipal Orchestra is playing to full houses this season, and the bulk of the audiences is composed of well-to-do people, able to afford more than the ridiculously low prices of admission charged. Last Sunday's concert included a soloist as well as the first performance in Shanghai of a Scriabine Concerto, for which seats could be had for a mere $1.10 or $0.55, say a little more than 8d. and 4d.

The orchestra is either worth considerably more or nothing at all. If the argument is that people will not pay more than 8d. to listen to two hours of symphonic music by a highly organized and expensive band of musicians in a city that has fate knocking at the door, then justification for the orchestra's continued existence is hard to see. The actual cost of the concerts may be too high to expect a complete refund from patrons, but reasonable prices at least should be levied.

In the announcement of the concert for the forthcoming Sunday, without soloist, prices advertised are $2.10, $1.60 $1.10 and $.65. Perhaps prices are determined by the composers, or by numbers from a hat.

Noisy Engine:
Landlords Reported Callous

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—Curious, whose letter appeared in today's issue of the "N.C.D.N.," has my deepest sympathy. Being a tenant of Cosmopolitan Apartments I know exactly what he must be feeling. For the last six weeks or so life has not been worth living. I have the misfortune to liye in that part of the building in which the machine in question is situated and the vibrations from this very crude engine are so strong that they actually shake pictures and ornaments in the flat. Sleep is out of the question. I switch on the light, I pick up a book and try to read, but, alas, even that solace is denied me.

I am sorry to say that I have ample proof that the owners of this apartment are taking advantage of the abnormal housing conditions existing in Shanghai at the present time to ride rough-shod over the interests and welfare of their tenants, safe in the knowledge that we either have to endure it or get out. Where? To camp in the street?

I appeal to the S.M.C. to do something to alleviate our very unfortunate situation.

A Tenant.

Exchange Question:
A Query from Kobe

To the Editor of the
"North-China Daily News"

Sir,—In order to settle an argument, I shall be greatly obliged if you can give me the following information:—Was the Shanghai Dollar, at any time, around 1920, worth nine shillings?

If you can give me the peak rate of exchange between Dollars and Sterling, also Taels and Sterling, since the war it would amicably settle the matter.

Woman's Ordeal In Ship's Bunker
Russian Girl Wanders All Over Europe, Stows Away In Antwerp

A woman's wanderings in Europe, and her final arrival in London after three days in a ship's bunker without food, were described at Old-street recently.

A nominal fine of 10/- was imposed on Rachel Rosenberg, 36, of Lordship-road, Stoke Newington, for having landed in the United Kingdom without leave of the immigration officer.

In a statement to the police Rosenberg said that she believed she was born in Petrograd—now Leningrad. She was married when she was 15, and her husband, whose surname she had now forgotten, but whose Christian name was Lieb, was killed fighting against the Bolsheviks.

In 1928 she went to Berlin, where she set up business as a dressmaker. On the advent of Hitler in 1933 she fled to Poland, and afterwards went to Antwerp.

"You Are Safe Now"

She remained there for two years, but without registering or doing any work. About a year ago she found that she had to leave there.

She went to the harbour with the intention of throwing herself into the sea, but a man asked her what she wanted to do, and said that for £10 he would help her to get out of the country.

"He put me in a bunker where they put their things," the statement continued. "There I remained for three days. I did not eat anything all the time, and only had a few drinks of water.

"On the third day, in the middle of the night, a sailor came into the bunker and said to me, 'The worst is over. You are safe now. You are in London.'"

The statement added that the sailor saw her ashore, and she was directed to the Jewish quarter.

Answering Mr. Alfred Kerstein, for Rosenberg, a police officer said that she had lived here quite respectably, and was in no sense an undesirable.

The Magistrate, Mr. Metcalfe, said that the woman had certainly had a hard life, and come through terrible privations.

"I do not suppose that anybody in this country is anxious to hound a woman of this kind out of it," he added. "I am going to make a recommendation for deportation, but the chances are that nothing will be done."

Sixty Years Ago

From the "North-China Daily News," of November 3, 1878

It is well known that during the cold weather the business of Shanghai and ports of North China is much less active than during the summer, and the gain of a day or two in the despatch of the mails at this season would be of little practical advantage either to us or to our correspondents in Europe. On the other hand, as our offices must be kept open for business until the hour for closing the mails, the proposed change [in the sailing day of the P. & O. will deprive us of the Saturday half holiday which has been for many years an established custom during the winter months. These short respites from work have proved so great a boon, and they are indeed so necessary to health after the enervating effects of a Shanghai summer, that the community can ill afford to lose them.

Plane Touches 550 M.P.H.

Squadron Leader J. W. Gillan, of the R.A.F., who flew a Hawker Hurricane from Edinburgh to Northolt, Middlesex, last February at an average speed of 408.75 m.p.h., now reveals that he probably touched 550 m.p.h., and that had he not overshot Northolt his average speed would have been about 456 m.p.h. for the 327-mile journey.

In the autumn issue of the journal of the Royal Air Force College Squadron Leader Gillan tells the full story of the flight. Referring to his having flown past Northolt, he says: Coming out of a cloud at 5,000 feet, I saw momentarily a red light flashing the letter of my station. But by the time I had registered this I was seven miles farther on. The signal time from the take-off to going over Northolt was 43 minutes, the time on my own watch 44 minutes. I returned to Northolt five minutes later and landed.

Dr. James Phemister, petrologist (scientist of stones) to the Geological Museum at South Kensington cuts solid stone so thin that granite becomes transparent and other types of rock show as clear as glass. He uses a process which can produce a sliver of rock less than a thousandth of an inch in thickness. Diamond dust is fed into the teeth of the saw during the process and water is played on it to keep it cool.

Need for a World Ideology
Mr. Wells on Organizing Mental Life; Present Pitiful Outlook

Mr. H. G. Wells paid a visit to the session of the International Federation for Documentation conference, at which 33 Governments are represented, at Lady Margaret Hall, when Professor A. F. C. Pollard, president of the British Society for International Bibliography, discussed Mr. Wells's project for a permanent world encyclopaedia.

Mr. Wells, yielding to an appeal from the Chairman, Professor R. S. Hutton, to address the conference, said he had a profound conviction that the world would not get on with its affairs until it pulled its mind together, until it organized its knowledge and its teaching, on a bolder and more powerful scheme than existed at present.

Casual Education

We lived, he said, in an atmosphere of the most casual education. It was appalling to him when he saw the great forces loose in the world, the armies, the navies, the political hallucinations under which people went to war with each other; when he saw the greatness of all this, and then compared with them the poor little, feeble string of universities, timid, and when a crisis occurred almost inaudible, and the rarity of anything like a really efficient school in the world.

He believed that unless there was a strenuous effort to organize our mental life on a sounder and bolder scale the outlook for humanity was pitiful indeed. He found it almost impossible to find anybody with the enthusiasm, possibly the fanaticism, the devotion, necessary for this reconstruction of a mental organization. We had, in all these movements for the coordination of knowledge, the beginnings of an accumulation of a systematic arrangement of knowledge, but we must have general consolidation of that knowledge, we must have summarization, we must have a world ideology brought into existence, if we desired to see a world much better than it was today.

There was nobody who was, say, younger than himself and had some energy available, who could not do something to forward this notion. It had to be talked about, tried out in all sorts of ways, and perhaps they would infect some of those enterprising people who had the control of large sums of money. He did not see that being done. There was much devotion but, at present, nothing in the nature of a movement.

Views of Teachers

When he talked to teachers and ventured to say to them, "Wouldn't you like to have a really big encyclopaedia at the back of you, supplying material for your lessons?" they flared up and said, "But we know everything already. Mr. Wells doesn't understand in the least what we are doing. He is unaware that we are making a new world as fast as it can be made." He always replied that he was not blaming them, but that what they were doing was something quite pitiful in relation to what ought to be done.

Professor Pollard said that specialization in research was running the risk of producing more data than were getting worked into competent generalization. Knowledge has become unmanageable. There were, he submitted, two aspects of the mobilization of knowledge, the ordered reference to original documents, and the condensation of their contents into instructive narratives for the use of intellectual people, two very different things. Subject bibliography was being organized by national bodies, in this country by the British Society for International Bibliography.

Based on key bibliographies and current bibliographies, an encyclopaedia could be kept continually up to date, arranged according to the Universal Decimal Classification system.

N.Z. Perpetual Forests
Compounding Contract; Commission's Decision

Auckland (N.Z.)

The directors of New Zealand Forest Products, Ltd., announce that the terms for compounding the maintenance contract between New Zealand Perpetual Forests, Ltd., and the company have been finally approved by the Bondholders' Incorporation Commission.

The position now is that New Zealand Forest Products, Ltd., will shortly obtain legal possession of the forests, and a transfer of cash, investments, and other assets, valued at approximately £1,300,000, which the company is entitled to receive from New Zealand Perpetual Forests in discharge of that company's obligations to bondholders. Until this contract had been compounded New Zealand Forest Products, Ltd. could not obtain legal possession of forests or take practical steps towards their utilisation.

The directors are now free to consider plans for the utilisation of the forests.

At the conclusion of a meeting of the Bondholders' Incorporation Commission this morning, the chairman, Mr. Barton, said that after hearing counsel for parties a form of order, known as a compounding maintenance contract, was approved.

Mr. Barton said that voluminous evidence had been considered and discussed, after the sitting of the Commission had closed, by all three members. They agreed wholly with the decision to compound the maintenance of forests, and approved the sum fixed as compensation. They considered the sum fair and reasonable.

Every issue in dispute had either been finally dealt with, or as stated in the deed, reserved for the final decision of the Commission.

Mr. Barton expressed appreciation of the co-operation of counsel for the parties. There had been no giving way of rights, he said, but everything had been settled in a wise spirit of compromise.

The counsel for New Zealand Forest Products, Ltd. said that 70,000 bondholders in different parts of the world, but chiefly in New Zealand and Australia, would be interested. Counsel for New Zealand Perpetual Forests, Ltd. said that the proceedings marked the conclusion of a monumental task.

Chairman's Explanation

The chairman of New Zealand Perpetual Forests, Ltd., Mr. William Fraser, said in Auckland that the approval of the Commission meant that New Zealand Perpetual Forests, Ltd. would transfer to New Zealand Forest Products, Ltd., the planted forests of more than 170,000 acres, together with cash, investments, and other assets amounting to over £1,300,000.

Out of this sum, £595,000 was already held, in cash and liquid securities, by the Australasian Forestry Bondholders' Trustees, and the balance, £700,000, was being handed over by New Zealand Perpetual Forests, Ltd. in the shape of cash, Government bonds, inscribed stock, shares, buildings, plant, and unplanted land. It was estimated that there are approximately £1,000,000 in cash and liquid or easily realisable assets, for the use of the products company.

New Zealand Forest Products, Ltd. would assume complete control of the forests, with sufficient funds to continue maintenance and development, and to commence cutting and marketing the timber.

Film Producer Arrested
Sixteen Defendants in Court, Charged With Inciting a Crowd

One woman and fifteen men arrested in the crowd gathered in Whitehall to watch the arrival of the French Premier, M. Daladier were charged at Bow-street. The woman and seven men were fined, seven charges were dismissed, and the hearing against one defendant was adjourned.

Edgar Harold Anstey, 31, productions director of a film company, of Belsize-avenue, N.W., charged with using insulting words and behaviour and obstructing the police, was acquitted. An application for costs against the police was refused.

P.c. Taylor said that Anstey was in a section of the crowd which tried to break through the police cordon across Downing-street. He raised his fist and shouted, "Down with Hitler!" "Save the Czechs" and other slogans.

When told to move back Anstey laughed and said, "Come on boys; we are not going to stand for this."

"A Better Film If—"

Cross-examined by Mr. Anthony Marlowe, defending, P.c. Taylor remarked: "It would have been a much better film if the crowd had broken through the police cordon."

Mr. Marlowe: Are you suggesting that he was inciting the crowd so that he could get a better photograph?—I do not know; he was inciting the crowd to break through. There was a battery of cameras facing the crowd.

P.c. Warren said that Anstey shouted that the police were a lot of murderers.

Anstey, in the witness-box, said that his company produced a news review to exhibit in cinemas. The company had no political bias.

He had been in Whitehall every day for 10 days and a number of films had been made. The police had always given him every facility and excellent co-operation. It would be impossible to do his work unless he could maintain the best relations with the police.

He denied making use of the phrases alleged by the police. Without hearing further evidence, the magistrate, Mr. McKenna, dismissed the charge.

Woman Charged

Iris C. Ryder, 38, a typist, of St. Edmunds-terrace, St. John's Wood, and Edmond Warburton, 26, of Clapham, were charged with using insulting behaviour. Warburton was further charged with obstruction.

P.c. Morris said Miss Ryder threw pamphlets into people's faces and Warburton brandished a booklet. When he took hold of the woman's arm to arrest her Warburton put his arms round her neck and said, "No, you don't. I am a Fascist, too." After her arrest, Miss Ryder said, "He came to my rescue, otherwise the crowd would have attacked me."

Miss Ryder, in the witness-box, said she went to Whitehall to make her little contribution towards rallying the people to stand firm for peace "because who wants war?" She never tried to throw leaflets in people's faces.

She was fined 50 shillings and the charges against Warburton were dismissed.

Changes Being Made In Savile Row
Extension of Street Long Associated with Tailors

A Victorian statesman, surveying the House of Commons after a famous General Election, observed that there were strange faces in familiar places and familiar faces in strange places. Something of the same sense of change is felt as, passing along Savile Row today, one discovers that this street, traditionally associated with the tailor, now gives shelter to the Forestry Commission. This newcomer of Savile Row has not only set up its headquarters there, but has also opened a second office in a separate building among the tailors.

This appearance of a statutory body in Savile Row is but one sign of changing times there. The main source of change in and around Savile Row is a scheme, now partly accomplished, for connecting Vigo Street with Maddox Street thus making a through road from Regent Street, at its Piccadilly end, to Bond Street. It is a plan which is being carried out gradually, and seems now to have reached a stage where the roadmakers are resting from their labours. Already they have swept Savile Place—a quiet back water of small shops—from the map of London, and the new widened road in its place has been added to Savile Row.

Demolition

The next stage is plainly visible, for the premises on the west side of Mill Street, between Saville Row and Conduit Street, are deserted, and there are boards across the windows of the ground-floor shops. The processes of demolition and reconstruction on the site of Savile Place have given a bright new frontage to Boyle Street on its north side, and the promise of something similar on the south side is nearing fulfilment. Here is one of those gigantic holes in the ground where the men at work seem to an inquisitive passerby to belong to a world apart. Small and faded notices in cardboard on the boardings beside the pavement tell of businesses that have left Savile Row to find new quarters elsewhere.

The new building on the north side of Boyle Street, while it has brought the Forestry Commission into an extended Savile Row, has also brought into Savile Row one more firm of tailors, formerly housed in Conduit Street. In the older part of Savile Row time marches on with a fair show of dignity and no indecent haste. There is a window at which one is still reminded that the firm inside were tailors "by appointment to H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh," and there are doors outside which extinguishers are still available in case one should happen to arrive with linkmen and lights.

"George and Margaret"

In selecting Gerald Savory's sparkling comedy "George and Margaret" for the A.D.C.'s second offering this season, the Committee appears to have made a very happy choice. Apart from the fact that it has proved quite one of the most successful plays during the past two London seasons, it includes in some of its principal parts actors of the younger generation.

In this production the producer, Mr. E. F. Smith-Wright, has been successful in securing the assistance of a quartette of youngsters who are showing every evidence of giving a very good account of themselves. Four of the Club's best known players round of what is likely to prove an excellent cast.

The playing dates November 23 to 26 inclusive should be noted.

Two-Piano Concert

On Tuesday Prof. B. Zakharoff and V. Havsky, teacher and pupil respectively, will give a concert for two pianos in the Lyceum Theatre. The programme is devoted entirely to the works of Rachmaninoff and Arensky. The former needs no introduction to the music loving world, inasmuch as he still composes, whereas Arensky is established in his native Russia, although in different musical spheres, as much as Tschaikowsky.

It is seldom that Prof. Zakharoff appears in recital and in conjunction with his talented pupil, who has appeared with the Municipal Orchestra he surely will delight lovers of the piano.

Pooh-Bah of the Cinema

Difficulties of Zoltan Korda in Taking Shots Of Native People; Making of "The Drum"

If Zoltan Korda ever decides to give up directing films for his producer-brother, Alexander, he should find several careers open to him. Great Britain could do worse than engage him to fill a Pooh-Bah position, for the younger Korda, during his many months spent filming scenes in out-of-the-way corners of India and Africa, has met and overcome on his own as many delicate and inflammatory situations as does the entire staff of the British Foreign Office on an off-day.

Velvet-gloved handling of temperamental natives has become a routine to Zoltan Korda, prefaced by the simple matter of reaching the far-off portion of the Empire designated for his film making. This is invariably accompanied by assorted sufferings—attacks by bloodthirsty insects, battles with the eternally extreme elements and encounters with the more novel forms of flora and fauna.

Once having arrived, he proceeds to introduce himself to the population with all the winning wiles of a baby-kissing politician and to accustom them to the idea of co-operating with a motion picture camera, once so universally hated by our unsophisticated brothers as a "devil machine."

But major problems crop up when, in his course of winning friends and influencing natives, Mr. Korda begins to make actors out of his utterly green (or, to be more accurate, coffee-coloured) human material. Changing natives into Thespians does not consist only of teaching them to grimace, move and speak their lines upon order in the civilized tradition. It is here that all the Korda ingenuity is called into play.

On the Northwest Frontier

For example, his latest filming expedition took him to the northwest frontier of India where he shot scenes for "The Drum," a tale of the Khyber Pass. Here numbers of Indians were used to play savage tribesmen and native troops. It was only after all his preliminary work had been done that Korda discovered he was faced with a problem as old as Mother India herself and twice as indomitable—the caste system.

Although to the eye of an uninitiated Westerner a Brahmin may look like a Vaisya and a Sudra resemble a pariah, still, to each other they are of totally different walks of life—encircled by invisible walls of caste—and all must obey their fast rules of behaviour. Rubbing elbows and consorting freely together, even for a cause as worthy as the British film industry, did not impress Korda's Indian actors.

The caste system was mightier than the desire for fame and gold and, bowing to the inevitable, Korda arranged himself accordingly. Acting upon the advice of his Indian Emily Post, Korda saw that caste lines were meticulously drawn through acting assignments, living quarters and even kitchens, so that none might be offended. Then the filming began.

Yet another crisis arose during the shooting of an attack in which 500 Indians were supposed to die exceedingly dead on the field of honour. But to Mr. Korda's extreme puzzlement the majority of his native actors did not even fall down, much less appear deceased. After some parleying through interpreters the reason was discovered—it was simply a case of cupidity.

The natives feared that by allowing themselves to be thoroughly "killed" before the cameras they would automatically end their working assignments and never again be able to act, a little super-realism on their part that was soon dispelled by an application of some Korda diplomacy.

Move to Modest Tribes

Indians are no more complicated, however, to work with than Africans, Mr. Korda discovered. Before making "The Drum" and "Elephant Boy" in India he worked on scenes for "Sanders of the River" in some of the deeper portions of the Dark Continent. There he became involved with many native problems, not the least of which was a tribe which wore no clothes at all and refused to change their lifelong customs even for the privilege of appearing on the screen. Realizing the limitations of making a film that could only be shown in nudist colonies, Mr. Korda moved on to more modest tribes.

Then there was a tribe which took its dancing more seriously than do Benny Goodman's jitterbugs. They danced for the frenzy of it, not for relaxation, and at unstated intervals certain natives would dance themselves into such furious moods that they felt they must kill whomever was nearest.

"Because of this remarkable parallel to the artistic temperament of the film world," explained Mr. Korda, "we were compelled to arrest and lock up an average of six 'actors' every day. If this should give any film producer ideas, I can only say that the treatment was most effective."

One of the better sets of the week is the circus which Sol Lesser has constructed at the RKO ranch on behalf of Tommy Kelly and Ann Gillis in "Peck's Bad Boy at the Circus." Hollywood's prop men are noted for being undismayed by any request that is made them, and when Lesser ordered a complete menagerie and show, they were supplied in no time.

Resting in a warehouse was the equipment from the defunct Woods Brothers Circus, which included a big top, a menagerie tent, sideshow tent, pad tent, two cookhouses, four dressing tents and a complete midway with banners. For this the producer spent $350 a day. To operate the show, George Cunningham from the A1 G. Barnes Circus was engaged; his crew consisted of eight riggers by day and four at night to be sure nothing happened when the company was not working; this crew was paid $150 a day.

The animals are subject to a double scale. The basic wage of menagerie beasts is $30 a day each for a lion and leopard, $45 for a tiger, $20 each for a camel and zebra, $25 for a monkey, $75 for an elephant and $150 a week for six trick goats; when they perform the price is doubled. Trick animals command all that a studio will pay. Lesser secured an act with twelve horses, for $2,500 for a ten-day engagement, paid $500 for two bareback horses for two days and $100 a day for a performing lion. The animals earned more than the eleven clowns, who were paid $25 a day, although one of them, who had a special stilt act, received $225 for his contribution.

The seven members of the Pina family got $1,500 for three days, while the Escalante family of eleven were paid according to their work on the trapeze. Their act on the flying trapeze brought them $1,000, while the bar trapeze earned but $750. Philip Escalante received $750 for doing his slack-wire act alone. To provide the proper atmosphere for a circus it was necessary to strew around $300 worth of hay and straw; the animals' menu was in addition to this.

With Alice Faye, Constance Bennett, Nancy Kelly and Joan Davis starred, "Tailspin," a film drama based upon the adventures of women fliers, has gone before the cameras at 20th Century-Fox. The featured cast includes Charles Farrell, Jane Wyman, Joan Valerie, Edward Norris, George Barbier and Wally Vernon.

Joy Blackwood

With the Russian Ballet tonight in "Don Quixote" at the Lyceum.

"Bells of Corneville"

Slobodskoy is to sing with the Russian Light Opera next week.

"Stanley, Livingstone"

"Stanley And Livingstone," the picture for which 20th Century-Fox sent an expedition to film location scenes in Africa, is set to start the Hollywood phase of its production on December 1. Tyrone Power and Loretta Young are tentatively scheduled for the co-stellar leads.

"Stanley And Livingstone" is a dramatization of the historic expedition of Henry M. Stanley, New York newspaperman, who penetrated the African interior to find Dr. David Livingstone, lost Scottish missionary. It was over the same ground traveled by Stanley that the film expedition, led by Mrs. Martin Johnson, made its safari shooting location material for the picture. The 100,000 feet of film thus shot, which includes several sequences of the native tribesmen in battle, was made in accordance with the script plan for the picture, and will be woven in with the studio material to make the picture as set out in the recently completed revised screenplay.

The budget allowance for "Stanley And Livingstone" is comparable to that for "Suez," starring Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Annabella, and the picture will be one of the several "special" productions scheduled by Darryl Zanuck for the present season, the first of which was "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

"Bells of Corneville"

The presentation of "Bells of Corneville" (Planquette) next week in the Lyceum by the Russian Light Opera marks the return of Sophia Zorich to the stage. Her excellent voice has been missed from this company's roster for more than one year and doubtless her legion of admirers will be delighted.

Also in the cast are Bitner, Rosen, Slobodskoy and Kudinoff while Seroff and Manjelei will head the ballet. The orchestra is in the very capable hands of A. Sloutsky.

Arcadian Items

The Hallowe'en ball at the Arcadia on Monday night, with all its carnival effects and hilarity, seems but a forerunner to a series of functions to be given in this popular ballroom. Tonight the Russian Employees' Association are sponsoring a dance, preceding which the management will serve a special Russian dinner. Similar events will be announced in the near future.

Much of the success of these functions is due to the melodies of Serge Ermoll and his twelve music masters, who have the dance-enticing modern melodies as much under control as the classical items of the past. Nick Kniazeff's ballet contribute with varied turns each night.

Chinese Pagoda Dance

An entirely new floor show programme will be presented by the Astor Trio tomorrow night at the Casanova Ballroom, it is announced by Sol Greenberg, manager. The trio will present for their featured number the difficult Chinese Pagoda acrobatic dance. Nina Anteres, feminine partner of the trio, will be seen in a gay sailor dance, while for their third number the George and Nick Astor will offer a new Charley Chaplin comedy number. The Casanova is open all night and has a complement of foreign hostesses.

Ballet of "Don Quixote"

The choreography of the very colourful ballet "Don Quixote" is rich with interesting episodes from the adventures of the famous Knight, with a lot of comical situations and beautiful dances—Tonight at the Lyceum.

The triumphal appearance of Don Quixote at a Spanish festival riding a real horse and Sancho Panza riding a little donkey will no doubt be very original. The fat, funny Sancho Panza who always gets into some sort of trouble, should be very amusing whilst the Barber and the Curate will add to the comical situations in the ballet.

The puppet theatre in which will appear little Joy Blackwood and a few youthful dancers will be charming. The attack of Don Quixote of a windmill, who catches him up on one of the wings and throws him to the ground, is a captivating dramatical moment.

The dream of Don Quixote in the Cave of Montesinos, the appearance of maidens with burning hearts, evil spirits in bacchanal dances and vision of beautiful Dulcinea create a colourful picture.

Vivid and rich in costumes and scenery festival in the Castle of the Duke, duel of Don Quixote with the Knight of White Moon, the grand polonaise rendered by the pupils of ballet studios and the appearance of the full ensemble in a grand finale will conclude this gala performance of the Russian Ballet.

What Every Woman Should Know

From the dawn of actual womanhood until past middle-age, the physical changes to which all women are subject, impose a heavy strain upon the kidneys. Similarly, at critical periods and during the months before and after childbirth, the kidneys have a great amount of additional work to do. It is little wonder, then, that women so frequently suffer with backache, bearing-down pains, rheumatic twinges, dropsical swellings, dizzy sensations, faintness, depression, nervousness, and irregularities of the urinary system. For women should realise that upon the kidneys devolves the vital task of filtering harmful poisons from the blood. If the kidneys are weak or overtaxed, these poisons infest the bloodstream, thereby upsetting the entire system and causing lumbago, gravel, inflammation of the bladder, rheumatism, sciatica and other painful disorders.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

THE GERMAN COLONIES

The various pronouncements of Herr Hitler and his supporters on the subject of the return of the former German colonies, and the perturbation which is being shown in Africa taken together are sufficient to indicate the very thorny nature of the question. By Article 119 of the Treaty of Versailles Germany renounced in favour of the Principal Allied and Associated Powers all her rights and titles over her overseas possessions. It was probably ill-advised of the victorious Powers to have insisted upon this surrender in the first instance, but the parcelling out of those colonies to various nations under the mandate system served to throw a cloak of dignity over something which was after all the spoliation of the vanquished by the victors. There is plenty of precedent to justify such a course, if the teachings of the past were to prevail at the conference table, but in face of the attempt to produce a new order in the world it was a mistake, and one which will give an enormous amount of trouble before it is rectified. It does not matter what were the arguments justifying the mandate system at the time of its institution—and there are those who contend that those arguments represent sheer hypocrisy—there can be no doubt that while some nations regarded the mandated territories as delivered over to them in trust for posterity, others frankly regarded them as permanent additions to their possessions. That view is not accepted by the British Prime Minister, for, when Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1936, he differentiated between colonies and mandated territories in a manner which should permit of no misconception.

> "As far as I know," he stated, "no one has ever asked or suggested that the British Empire should give up any of its colonies, and I need hardly say that, if such a demand were made, it could not possibly be entertained for a moment. Mandated territories....are in a somewhat different category, and are only part of the British Empire in what I may call a colloquial sense."

He added that Great Britain did recognize definite obligations to the people inhabiting those territories, and they could not think of surrendering those obligations, or handing over the territories to any other Power, even for the sake of obtaining a general peaceful settlement, unless they were satisfied that the interests of all sections of the populations inhabiting those territories were fully safeguarded.

During the years since the establishment of the mandate system, changes of importance have taken place in the mandated territories, not the least of which has been the settlement therein of people regarding the particular government as favourable to their interests, and looking forward to a permanent continuance of that form of rule. Thus, especially in Tanganyika, there has grown up a large body of opinion which favours continuance of the British mandate, and does not desire to be placed under German control. The situation was made quite plain in December, 1935, when Mr. Baldwin, then Prime Minister, was asked in the House of Commons for an assurance that "neither Tanganyika, nor any other British colony or mandated territory, would be transferred from British sovereignty save with the consent of all classes, creeds and races within the territory primarily affected. He replied

> The Right Hon. gentleman can hardly expect me to give such a categorical assurance in reply to such a purely hypothetical question. I can, however, assure the Right Hon. Member that no British territory and no territory under British protection or mandate would be transferred from British sovereignty without the fullest regard being had to the interests of all sections of the population in the territory concerned.

There are, therefore, two factors to be taken into consideration when considering the German desire for the restoration of the former German colonies. The one is the very obvious justice and necessity of doing something to meet German demands in this matter, and the other is the very plain and freely admitted duty of the British Government to the inhabitants of the territories concerned. It may be possible to reconcile the two, but it is quite plain that the task of doing so is beset with all manner of intricacies, which removes the whole question from the category of simple issues.

In approaching this question, which concerns other nations as well as Great Britain, it is essential that full recognition should be given of the fact that the generalization from particular instances, such as the virtual extermination of the Herrero tribe in South-West Africa, that Germany's pre-war colonial policy showed her to be unfit for the administration of native territories, has long since been abandoned. At the most the argument that these colonies had been misgoverned was greatly exaggerated: it was certainly not sufficient to justify the "colonial guilt lie" which was alleged against the Germans. Once that is disposed of, it would seem that the best means of reaching a solution of the whole problem would be through a meeting of the Mandatory Powers to examine the whole question, for it is apparent that while German eyes look mostly to Great Britain in this matter, it is one which involves other nations as well. It is just as necessary if there is to be a final settlement of the matter that the Japanese mandate shall be equally considered with those of other Powers, and if justice is to be done to the German claim, it is necessary that Germany should make it quite plain that she demands the return of the whole of her colonies, and not merely those of her own selection. But it has already been said, in this respect, that Japan's attitude is that "Maintenance of Japan's Mandate over South Sea Islands which formerly belonged to Germany is the established policy of this Empire" (The Vice-Minister of Overseas Affairs, November, 1937). It is readily admitted that the German demand for the removal of those injustices inflicted by the Versailles Treaty should be met. But it should be met by everybody concerned, and that despite the fact that changed conditions in so many of those former colonies imports considerations which were not visualized when the system of mandates was first conceived. Prima facie it is clear that unconditional return will be difficult, because of those changed conditions, but some way will have to be found to satisfy German aspirations, if the world is ever to make that progress towards a general settlement which is impossible so long as matters such as this remain outstanding.

The War on the Map

The military operations map published by this journal yesterday has been the subject of much interesting comment, and, therefore, a few observations are not out of place. It shows clearly, and succinctly the present state of the hostilities in China from a geographical, and political point of view, and places in proper relationship various statements and estimates of frequent repetition but of ambiguous purport. The general comment on examining the map was, after a long and costly campaign in which military casualties have exceeded a million, civilian casualties even higher and material damage running into thousands of millions of dollars, the area in Japanese occupation is so small in relation to the whole of China. This obvious impression has produced reactions from both sides. Expressed in territorial terms, Japanese publicists have emphasized the immensity of the conquest which has added to military possession an area far larger than that of Japan proper. On the other hand, compared with the total area of the country it finds a reflection in the statement of General Chiang Kai-shek, issued after the People's Political Council meeting at Chungking, in which he refers to the fact that China's main base for a war of resistance is in her vast hinterland and not on her coast. Both are correct in the sense in which they are expressed but analysis alters the basis. Geographically, the balance is greatly in favour of China but economically it is overwhelmingly in favour of Japan. If General Chiang predicates continued resistance on the control of vast rural areas which can supply his simple needs until Japan is so overburdened with debt through the maintenance of a large army of occupation that exhaustion halts the military machine it is a comprehensible attitude although it ignores several important factors. One is that China economically is virtually lost to the present administration. Japan controls the coastline of the Asiatic continent from the borders of Indo-China to Russia with every big port either occupied or controlled by the army or navy. Within the present area of occupation practically every big industrial or commercial centre and nearly all the railways and important waterways are included and the richest territories of China, including the Yangtze Valley, are under Japanese domination leading to the recent statement in the Tokyo "Nichi Nichi" that Japan, once a "have not" country, will become one of the greatest "have" nations in the world with the present conquest added to the Japan-Manchoukuo-China bloc. These resources will, naturally, be used against China in continuation of the scheme of conquest. These are material possessions of great value as the map shows and provide the objectives of the campaign which Japan's political plans will develop. What the map does not show and cannot plumb is the extent of the forces of moral and spiritual resistance aroused in China by the invasion of the country which have withstood the impact of a vastly superior military force although military resistance has failed. There are some wars which are not fought on straight military issues. The Chinese war is a case in point according to the Chinese view and even though peace talks are in the air it is not easy to foretell the nature of the end.

Record Dairy Show

The British people do not allow themselves to be deflected from their normal duties of life by rumours or even threats of war, and the Londoner, although recently devoting his spare time to voluntary service for national defence, is carrying on under the slogan "business as usual." In the strained conditions of the crisis, with the pavements piled high with sandbags, the 60-year-old London Dairy Show celebrated its diamond jubilee, showing a cheerful optimism for the future by abandoning its old and cramped quarters in Islington and exhibiting for the first time at Earl's Court, one of the two largest halls in London. The magnitude of the British dairy industry may be estimated from the fact that wholesale contracts for milk alone aggregate nearly £1,000,000 per week. The show acts as a "shop-window" for this great industry, and this year it was by far the finest exhibition of dairy produce that the country had ever seen. Cattle competitions formed the central feature of the show, and every year interest in them increases; partly because British cattle, being the finest stock, are exported to every corner of the world, and partly because the nation is becoming more "milk-conscious." The latter point is evidenced by the fact that the annual consumption of fresh milk has increased by 115,000,000 gallons during the last four years, in which period the number of Grade-A milk producers has increased from 800 to 26,000. Cattle entries numbered 340 this year, every animal being tuberculin-tested, and among them were 70 Dairy Shorthorns, the original British breed which is world-famous for its adaptability to extreme climatic conditions. The entry of 130 goats was the largest ever known, and the judges stated that the quality of bacon entered by British farmers was the highest they had ever seen.

"With a dot on the 'i,' sir!" came the quick reply.

LORD Nelson was presented with a coffin made from the main-mast of the ship Orient, which blew up at the Battle of the Nile, and this he kept for some time in his cabin.

AN American officer who visited New Zealand during the War left a £10 note with the hotel barman while he went to the races. It's a good idea to have a cash reserve to come back to after the races. The barman put the note in the cash register and went off duty. The proprietor saw the "tenner" and borrowed it to pay the brewer. The brewer paid his tailor, the tailor paid his grocer, the grocer paid the doctor, the doctor—who was staying at the same hotel—was so pleased to get paid that he went down and paid £10 on account of his bill at the hotel, and so the note went back into the till. When the officer came back from the races he received his "tenner" from the barman and tore it in pieces. "Hey there," cried the barman, "don't do that," "It's all right," said the American, "It's counterfeit."

"WELL, well, well!" said the spokesman of the Society of Dear Old Pals, Jolly Old Pals, "We did have a job, pal, but it's all over now. What a job, eh?"

"What do you mean?" I said.

"Why, getting Mr. Winston Churchill and Lady Astor to make it up."

"You did that?"

"We did, pal! Of course, it was the devil's own job after she'd told him, in the House, not to be rude, and he'd whipped round and made a very sarcastic remark about her good manners.

"But we staged a meeting in a pal's house and we slipped Mr. Churchill a rose—the last rose of summer, you might say—and we said 'Go on, give it to her!'"

"And then?"

"Then it was all right, pal. Lady Astor said, 'Oh, thanks ever so,' she said. 'You're ever so nice.'

"And Mr. Churchill said, 'Don't mench. The pleasure is mine.'

"And she said, 'Well, perhaps I was a teeny bit hasty—but you know how these things are!'

"And he said, 'Do I not! And if it comes to that, perhaps I was a bit on the quick side, too.'

"And she said, smiling, 'Ah, well, easy come, easy go.'

"And he said, smiling too, 'Well, from today, let's go along together, as pals, shall us?'

"And she said, 'If it's on with you, it's on with me."

"And then they pledged each other in glasses of fizzy lemonade. And that was that."

"Fine work, pal," I said. "Jolly fine work!"

Britain Will Share in Rebuilding China

Mr. Chamberlain Expresses Confidence in Commons Declaration; Home Defence, Arms Programme, Appeasement Aims Discussed

London, Nov. 2.

THE international situation, including China, home defence, Palestine, the Munich Agreement, the Hitler-Chamberlain Declaration, the question of refugees and the Anglo-Italian Agreement were among the subjects touched upon in the House of Commons yesterday, when Parliament reassembled.

Referring to China, in the debate on the international situation initiated by Mr. C. R. Attlee, Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, took a cheerful view on the future of British trade in China, and twitted Mr. Attlee for having been "too gloomy" on the subject. There could be no development in China, Mr. Chamberlain emphasized, without a great deal of capital, and for that Japan would have to go to other countries, including Great Britain.

So much capital was now being destroyed in China, he continued, that even more would be wanted when the war was over, and it was quite certain that whoever reconstructed China could not do so without some help from Great Britain.

An emphatic "No, sir," was the reply given by Mr. R. A. Butler, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to whether any measures were in progress, or were being contemplated, to concert collective measures against Japanese aggression upon China.

The question had been asked by Mr. Samuel Vyvyan Adams, Unionist member for West Leeds.

To subsequent queries on China, Mr. Butler declared that there had been no loss of British lives, or damage to British property, in connection with the occupation of Hankow.

He said that the British Consul and the Rear-Admiral in the Yangtze were chiefly responsible for bringing the foreign areas safely through the crisis.

South China Fighting

It was too early, he added, to assess the course of hostilities in South China, but there appeared to be no immediate prospect of a cession of the fighting.

Mr. Butler answered "Yes" to another question whether the Government had done anything to protect British industries in China and to see that the Open Door had been maintained.

These queries were put by Mr. Wilfred Paling, Labour member for the Wentworth division of Yorkshire, W.R., and Sir Percy Harris, Liberal member for south-west Bethnal Green.

Aid for China Urged

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Leader of the Liberal Opposition, advocated giving financial help to China, and urged the Government to "stand by France if she finds herself in difficulties arising out of the Japanese complaint that material is reaching the Chinese forces through Indo-China."

Mr. Chamberlain Replies

Rising after Mr. Attlee, in the general debate on the adjournment motion, Mr. Chamberlain answered the Opposition Leader regarding the Munich Agreement.

He said that he regretted Mr. Attlee's attitude towards the Agreement and added that "it is not one of the characteristics of the totalitarian states that they are accustomed to foul their own nests."

The Prime Minister condemned the tendency to describe it as the defeat of democracy or the cause of law and order.

On the contrary, he said that he regarded the Pact as a step to carry out, by discussion between the democracies and totalitarian states, an agreed solution of a problem, to which the alternative appeared to be the use of force.

Instead of the use of force, the Agreement had been carried out in an orderly manner.

Alternative in War

Mr. Chamberlain denied the right of opponents to criticize the results of the Agreement, in which it had only been possible to lay down general outlines leading to the filling in of details by an International Commission, unless they were prepared to say that they would have accepted the alternative of war.

He then explained the conditions in which the proposal for plebiscites had been abandoned as the result of the Agreement reached between the Germans and the Czechs.

He declared that Mr. Attlee could not claim that the right of option, provided in the Munich Agreement, was illusory, since the German-Czech Commission had not yet formulated its conclusions for submission to the International Commission.

Aid for Refugees

The Prime Minister joined Mr. Attlee in expressing sympathy for the refugees of the world today.

He mentioned that authority had been given for temporary admission to the United Kingdom of 350 individuals from Czechoslovakia, who were actually in danger if they remained there.

Their maintenance while in England, he continued, had been arranged for and would be extended to their families, if similar undertakings for their maintenance were forthcoming.

Mr. Chamberlain also announced that the Government had appointed Mr. R. J. Stockford, who had accompanied the Runciman mission to Prague, to report on the number and condition of refugees in Czechoslovakia and the progress of relief.

He said that he was not yet in a position to make a fuller statement on the proposed guaranteed loan to Czechoslovakia, but that the advance of £10,000,000, already made, would be drawn upon for the maintenance and settlement of refugees.

German Migrants

The Inter-Government Commission, dealing with refugees from Germany, Mr. Chamberlain went on, had made it clear that involuntary immigrants of German origin from Sudeteniand would be put in the same position as other involuntary immigrants with whom the Government was concerned.

Replying to Mr. Attlee's questions regarding the offer of guarantee of the new Czech frontiers, the Prime Minister said that he was not yet in a position to add anything to the statement, made on October 4, by Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence.

He added that the position could not be cleared up until the whole question of minorities in Czechoslovakia had been settled.

Lords Anxious on Home Defence

Lord Zetland Gives Encouraging Report On Progress Made

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 2.

A motion for a secret independent committee enquiry to examine the state of national defence, especially Air-Raid Precautions, was submitted in the House of Lords yesterday by Lord Strabolgi, who emphasized that while Great Britain was in a period of emergency, it was wrong to exaggerate her weakness.

"We were not last December, and are not now by any means, defenceless." Nevertheless, Lord Strabolgi pointed out, there was obviously something wrong somewhere. There was a woeful deficiency in anti-aircraft defences, which was inexcusable, he added.

Viscount Swinton advocated the creation of a Ministry of National Service and a Ministry of Supply without delay.

The former First Lord of the Admiralty, Viscount Bridgeman, said: "We are running the risk of over-emphasizing static defence like the Air-Raid Precautions, which is worse than useless unless it is accompanied by measures of active defence."

Government Reply

The Marquess of Zetland, Secretary of State for India and Burma, in reply, said that the Government had already taken steps to review defence preparations, and that the review was in such an advanced state that Lord Strabolgi's proposal would mean a waste of time and a duplication of work.

Regarding supplies, Lord Zetland declared that "we are now beginning to reap the harvest."

In October, 1936, the strength of the air defence personnel was 663 officers and 8,798 other ranks. In October, this year, there were 2,027 officers and 45,223 other ranks.

Anti-aircraft guns, the Marquess of Zetland continued, were being delivered at three times the rate of six months ago.

The establishment of a Ministry of Supply now, when the rearmament programme was bearing fruit, he pointed out, would have the effect of slowing production instead of increasing it.

Compulsion Not Necessary

Regarding a national register, he concluded, it would be time to decide the matter of compulsion when "we have seen how the people respond to the appeal to register voluntarily.

"If we are going to devote the whole resources of the country upon armaments, irrespective of the effect on civil industry and the financial structure of the country, that would be a different matter."

Lord Stonehaven said that he was not convinced that the Government was alive to the seriousness of the situation.

It was hoped that there would be great results from the Munich Agreement, but it would be more satisfactory if one saw some sort of response in the German press.

"Let us not worship appeasement in the same way as some worship collective security," he concluded.

The debate was then adjourned.—Reuter.

End of China War Seen Approaching

Sir Frederick Whyte Says Japan Needs Money

London, Nov. 2.

Speaking at York today, Sir Frederick Whyte, formerly Political Adviser to the Chinese Government, said there were indications that the end of the Sino-Japanese war might be approaching.

Combined action by Great Britain and America, he declared, might bring a real settlement between China and Japan.

"Japan," Sir Frederick Whyte continued, "is bound to come to Britain and America to borrow money. We must not leave it to bankers to settle terms. We must lay down certain minimum political and moral obligations, which must be recognized by Japan before either Britain or America agrees to lend her a penny."—Reuter.

Ratification of Anglo-Italian Accord Moved

Commons Debate Over Question Opened by Mr. Chamberlain

London, Nov. 2.

A motion "welcoming the Government's intention to bring the Anglo-Italian Agreement into force" was submitted by the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, when the House of Commons met today.

The Labour Opposition vote on the motion will be probably directly negative, but the Liberal Opposition intend to move an amendment disapproving the operation of the Agreement until Italy has "fulfilled her obligations under the Non-Intervention Agreement and withdrawn all Italian troops, airmen and military specialists from Spain, Majorca and other Spanish territories.".

In submitting his motion Mr. Chamberlain said that since the Agreement was made on April 16 he ventured to think that there had been no difference between the two countries. But if the marked improvement in relations was to be maintained, delay in putting the agreement into force could not be indefinitely maintained.

Ten thousand Italians had been withdrawn from Spain. This number represented half the Italian infantry forces in that country.

"I have received from Signor Mussolini," Mr. Chamberlain declared, "definite assurances that the remaining forces of all categories will be withdrawn when the non-intervention plan comes into operation."

Signor Mussolini, he informed the House, had undertaken that no further Italian troops would be sent to Spain.

Recognition of Empire

Mr. Chamberlain said the British Ambassador would be accredited to the King of Italy and the Emperor of Ethiopia.

The Spanish question, he declared, was no longer a menace to the peace of Europe, and there was no valid reason why we should not take a step which would contribute to general appeasement.

Mr. Joseph Lyons, Prime Minister of Australia, and General J. B. M. Hertzog, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa, had cabled their approval of the proposed step as a contribution to peace.

Mr. Chamberlain spoke for 20 minutes.—Reuter.

Defence Plans Fail to Satisfy Press

London Press Comment On Commons Statement

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 2.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain's fundamental announcements of policy in respect of the strengthening of Home defence were somewhat disappointing, declared the "Daily Telegraph" this morning in a leading article.

"They failed," continued the newspaper, "to indicate that resolute and thorough-going purpose which public opinion would welcome....One thing the country will not forgive is another fiasco.

"There is still time to save the rearmament programme from failure, but not by half measures or postponing necessary decisions to the last moment."

"The Times," on the other hand, approved the Prime Minister's argument in the House of Commons for the rejection of the proposal for a Ministry of Supply.

If the Anglo-German declaration in Munich, added the paper, could be translated into a general settlement of outstanding questions, including the colonial question and the question of limitation of armaments, then no one would protest any longer that the Munich Agreement represented a defeat.

"It cannot be too often repeated," said "The Times," "that there is no inconsistency between the hope that the Munich Declaration is the first step towards a durable peace and the determination that our national defences shall be made efficient. Moreover, it is high time to point out that the plea, which appears to have gained currency abroad, that Great Britain during the recent emergency was a prey to complete confusion is extremely misleading."—Reuter.

Berlin Satisfied

Berlin, Nov. 1.

Political circles here expressed their deep satisfaction with the speech delivered today by Mr. Neville Chamberlain and stressed that the British statesman "has shown a complete understanding of the German point of view, as well as of the main political factors which are determining the future of Europe."

Mr. Chamberlain's speech is a reaffirmation on the international collaboration policy inaugurated in Munich, official quarters here declared.—Havas.

Kuomintang Can Take Part in New Chinese Government

Japanese Stipulate Change in Attitude Before Co-operation is Allowed with New Regimes

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

JAPAN will not reject the participation of the Kuomintang Government in the establishment of a new order in the Far East if it repudiates its anti-Japanese and pro-Communist policy and remoulds its personnel, declares a statement issued by the Japanese Government on the eve of the anniversary of the birth of Emperor Meiji.

The new order, it asserts, has for its foundation the tripartite relationship of mutual aid and co-ordination between Japan, Manchoukuo, and China. The establishment of this order, the statement adds, is the ultimate aim of the present military campaign.

The statement contends that the Kuomintang Government no longer exists except as a mere local regime, but that as long as it maintains its anti-Japanese and pro-Communist policy Japan will lay down arms—never until that regime is crushed.

Confidence is expressed that the Powers will correctly appreciate Japan's aims and policy, and adapt their attitude to the new conditions prevailing in East Asia.

The statement voices profound gratitude for the cordiality manifested to Japan by nations which are in sympathy with her.

According to Japanese circles, it would be wrong to interpret the Government's statement as indicating any deviation of its famous declaration of January 16.

They assert that the Imperial Government will not, in any circumstances, talk peace with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, but is only willing to incorporate a reorganized Kuomintang Government as a component part of a new central government of China.

Federal System Foreseen

A federal system with North China, Central China, South China and Inner Mongolia as the units for a projected Central Government of new China, will probably be adopted by a joint commission of the two new regimes of Peiping and Nanking, according to a Nanking dispatch received today by the "Hochi Shimbun."

The joint commission is at present in session, according to the same dispatch.

At the same time it is understood that the Nanking Government is convoking its first national mass meeting in Nanking on November 6, with 36,000 prominent citizens taking part.

A resolution embracing an anti-Chiang Kai-shek, anti-comintern and pro-Japanese policy will be adopted, declared the dispatch.—Reuter.

"Will of the People"

Nanking, Nov. 2.

Representatives of the "Provisional"" and "Reformed" administrations reached an understanding today for the establishment of a new Central Government of China "based on the will of the people."

The people of China should be awakened to the realization that China can be saved only by stamping out Communism," a spokesman of the delegates said. "After a national spirit of opposition to Communion is developed a central government can function effectively according to the guiding principle of basing its acts on the will of the people."—Domei.

Women Seek Way To Aid Wounded

New Chungking Club Meets To Study Problems Brought Up By New Phase of War

Chungking, Nov. 2.

The newly-formed Chungking International Women's Club held its second meeting at 2.30 p.m. today, when 70 to 80 Chinese and foreign women were present, the majority being Chinese.

Professor W. B. Diang addressed them on the problems and care of wounded Chinese soldiers, stating that this new phase of the war, without railway communications, has brought new needs to the people.

More than twenty stations where wounded soldiers can be rested en route to the rear, are being prepared on several selected main roads. In the meantime, however, the chief need is clothing and bedding.

At the gathering a resolution was passed to the effect that a committee is to be appointed to take charge in the manufacture of these necessities in collaboration with three other bodies.

The club has an ambitious programme, and the members' activities include social service, child training, language study, music, handicrafts, cooking, sports literature, Chinese studies and international relations.—Reuter.

Gen. Chiang Given Backing In Resistance

Chungking, Nov. 2.

The manifesto issued on Monday last by General Chiang Kai-shek announcing his determination to continue resistance and expressing his hope for a fine victory of China has met with the full approval of the Chinese press and leading Chinese politicians assembled here for the People's Political Council.

Chinese circles point out that the Communist Party also agree with the manifesto and that the Communists are ready to follow the policy of the Chinese Government.—Trans-Ocean.

Totalitarian Regimes Warned by U.S. Secretary of State

Mr. Cordell Hull Declares American Trade Policy Remains Unchanged; Autarchy Doomed to Failure

New York, Nov. 1.

Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, tonight warned totalitarian nations that their self-contained trade policies would lead them to economic collapse. He reiterated the faith of the United States Government in its policy of multilateral trade treaties including most-favoured-nation clauses.

Mr. Hull told the totalitarian states that if they hoped to trade with the United States, they would have to accept American terms. His remark was regarded as a warning to the German Economics Minister, Herr Walther Funk, not to hope to induce the United States to accept a bilateral trade agreement.

Mr. Hull drew attention to reports claiming that the recent Munich Accord between Italy, Germany, Britain and France would force the United States to revise her trade policies.

"Nothing has occurred in recent years or weeks which has served to discredit in any way the principles which form the basis on which we are seeking to bring a restoration of sound economic conditions which form the necessary foundation for durable peace," Mr. Hull said.

The Secretary of State said the autocracies "employ methods of forced and artificial stimulation of trade which inescapably prevents trade from making its full contribution even to their own well-being and economic stability."

Mr. Hull's statements were made during an address before the Foreign Trade Convention in New York.—United Press.

H.M.S. Diamond for Foochow

Hongkong, Nov. 2.

The British warship Diamond has been dispatched from Amoy to Foochow as a "precautionary measure" following rumours that a major Japanese landing had been effected south of Foochow, the "Hongkong Telegraph" reported here this morning.

British and American authorities here, the paper said, have received no confirmation that a landing has been made.—Domei.

U.S. Spending Hits New Record Level

Further Expenditure Under New Deal Plan Being Anticipated

Washington, Nov. 1.

The Treasury Department announced here today that Federal expenditures up to October 28 for the first four months of the fiscal year totalled $2,934,000,000, a new record in New Deal spending.

The nearest peace time approach to this record was in 1935 when the Government spent $2,569,000,000.

Treasury experts pointed out, however, that the strong tide of the business upturn, a fresh wave of reemployment particularly in the motor car industry, and other favourable business factors would somewhat offset the unfavourable aspects of the Government's heavy spending.

They admitted, however, that there was little reason to expect that Federal fiscal deficit would be much below President Roosevelt's forecast of $4,000,000,000. Some financial experts here predicted that the Government would surpass its 1936 record when the fiscal deficit was $4,360,000,000.—United Press.

British Ship Freed By Japanese Police

Freighter Grounded in Fortified Zone

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

The British freighter Antigone (4,545 tons), the master of which, Captain Beddie McDonald Stephen, got into trouble with the Japanese police because his ship grounded in a fortified zone during a fog, was allowed to sail from Yokohama this evening. The police gave Capt. Stephen permission to sail for Kobe after he had agreed to sign a promise to pay Y.1,750 compensation for damage alleged to have been suffered by fishing nets and shellfish beds when the ship went off its course and grounded near Futtsui, in Chiba Prefecture, on Saturday morning.

The vessel was refloated an hour later by its own power and arrived in Yokohama the same morning, since when Capt. Stephen, who appears to have been suspected of deliberate violation of the Military Secrets Protection Law, has been subjected to a gruelling examination.

At the time of the accident the ship was en route to Yokohama from Makatia, in the South Seas, with a cargo of phosphorous.—Reuter.

An Arab Moslem delegation, headed by Allouba Pasha, former Minister in the Egyptian Government, has arrived in London to submit to the British Government resolutions on Palestine, which have been passed by the World Arab Moslem Congress in Cairo.

According to Allouba Pasha, the Congress demands the immediate stoppage of Jewish immigration, the establishment of a national constitutional government, with full safeguards for the minorities, and a treaty alliance with Great Britain.

It is expected that the delegation will meet Mr. Malcolm Macdonald, Secretary of State for the Dominions and for the Colonies.—Reuter.

U.S. Rail Wage Cut Application Vetoed

New York, Nov. 1.

The commission appointed by President Roosevelt totally rejected the wage cut application by railroads.

It urged Government management and labour co-operation to secure fundamental remedies for the railroad's difficulties. The preliminary reception of the report by all three parties, encouraged hopes for concrete action in this sense, although any action, if decided, must take time.—Reuter.

British Labour Loses Six Municipalities

Elections Throughout England Being Held

London, Nov. 2.

The Labour Party lost control of six municipalities as a result of polling in about 130 principal cities and boroughs in nationwide elections held yesterday.

The bringing of the growing burden of rates and local air raid precaution activities were among the issues in the elections which did not affect the metropolitan area.—Reuter.

Discovery of Snakes At Honolulu

Honolulu, Nov. 1.

Mr. David Fullaway, entomologist of the Board of Agriculture, said today that he believed that the deadly pit vipers recently found in Honolulu came from glass jars originally containing "viper juice." He said some Orientals, especially Chinese, use this "viper juice" for medical purposes.

The Chamber of Commerce and other local agencies were deeply concerned over the discoveries of the vipers in territory which was supposed to be absolutely snakeless.—United Press.

Ichang Residents Alarmed

Japanese Approach to City Feared; Society in Wuhan Believed to Foreshadow New Government

Chungking, Nov. 2.

THE British gunboat Gannet has left Chungking for Ichang, about 350 miles above Hankow, where much nervousness is said to prevail regarding the intentions of the Japanese forces advancing from the direction of Sinyang. The wives and families of the small foreign community in Ichang are expected to come to Chungking shortly, as are also some Chinese Government officials usually stationed there.

No definite information is available whether foreignowned steamers usually plying between Ichang and Changsha are operating at present. It is understood that there are still considerable quantities of goods from Hankow lying in Ichang, awaiting shipment to Chungking.

The daily flying-boat service formerly running to Hankow now terminates at Ichang, where there is a large airfield suitable for bombing raids on cities in west China.

Mrs. Franson and Mrs. Wolfenden, whose husbands are employed in the Chinese Customs, are understood to have left Ichang for Chungking.—Reuter.

Hanchwan Occupied

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

Hanchwan, about 60 kilometres west of Hankow, was occupied by a Japanese detachment which pushed up the Han River in pursuit of retreating Chinese troops, the "Nichi-Nichi" reported today.

Another detachment engaged in a clean-up campaign west of Hanyang captured Hwangliki, important town about 35 kilometres south of Wuchang, the paper said.—Domei.

Japanese Navy Push On

The Japanese Yangtze river flotilla, which scored a smashing victory in the capture of the three Wuhan cities, is making preparations for the next stage of operations, it was announced in an official communiqué issued by the command of the Japanese China Seas Fleet yesterday at noon.

The officers and men of the flotilla, the communiqué stressed, are in excellent spirits.

The special naval landing party of the Japanese navy, the communiqué said, is now carrying out the duty of policing Hankow. These units are expecting to co-operate with the fleet in the coming operations, the communiqué added.

Wuhan Society Formed

Hankow, Nov. 2.

A newly-formed Wuhan Public Union Society has been inaugurated here, according to the "Central China Post." It is alleged to be under the auspices of the Japanese Special Service Section.

Mr. Lan Shi-chow, former Director of the Hankow Chamber of Commerce, is stated to have been appointed president of the society, which will hold meetings weekly to study reports on local conditions.

The significance of the society has so far not been ascertained, but some sources believe that it is the first step towards a local government.

Authoritative quarters, however, are completely unaware that such an organization exists.

No formal protest has so far been made against the closing of the gates of the former British Concession at 6 o'clock on Sunday night.

The British Consul-General Mr. C. E. Whitamore, however, is making enquiries for the reason of such closure before taking any action.—Reuter.

New Refugee Zone

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

A new refugee zone for homeless and destitute Chinese in Hankow was completed yesterday morning by the Japanese authorities when the first group of refugees was transferred to the new camp from the French Concession and the former British, German and Russian concessions, it was reported here.

The transfer of the refugees, the dispatches stated, is being effected by Japanese gendarmes with the assistance of 200 Chinese policemen.

Reports stated that the estimated number of destitute refugees totals 50,000, while refugees who have homes but no food number 150,000. The removal of the refugees to the new camp, it was reported, will be completed by Saturday.

War Material Taken

Booty captured by Japanese forces on the northern Yangtze front greatly exceeded that which was taken at Hsuchow, both in variety and volume, field dispatches reaching here this morning revealed.

Near Yingcheng, the dispatches stated, Japanese spoils of war included more than 100 field guns, 50 motor cars, 2,600 bales of rice, and large quantities of rolling stock and arms and ammunition.

It was also reported that near Hwayuan, the booty included more than ten field guns, 50 motor cars, 3,000 bales of rice and heavy pieces of baggage.

The reports added that in the triangular space between Siaokan, Yingcheng and Yunmeng, the roads were dotted with motor cars and gun carriages left behind by the Chinese when they beat a hasty retreat.—Domei.

Siaokan Occupied

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

Siaokan, a strategical point on the Peiping-Hankow Railway and about 50 kilometres northwest of Hankow, was occupied by Japanese forces on Sunday afternoon, a message reaching here today disclosed.

After occupying Siaokan the Japanese forces pressed on and captured Changkiangfow, about four kilometres southwest of Siaokan, on Monday, the message said.—Domei.

Chinese Losses in Kwangtung Heavy

Japanese Troops Press on Towards West; Ultimate Objective Kunming?

Canton, Nov. 2.

Chinese casualties in Kwangtung province were estimated at 9,000 slain and 35,000 wounded in field reports received here today.

The Chinese 151st Division suffered heavy losses and has only a few hundred men left for active service, the reports said. Ranks of the 158th Division and Independent 20th Brigade likewise were depleted by Japanese attacks, the reports claimed. The 20th Brigade was said to have only about 100 survivors.—Domei.

Japanese Move West

Canton, Nov. 2.

Heavy Japanese troop movements, including cavalry, are now in progress day and night towards the west, from Canton.—Reuter.

Centre in South-west

Hongkong, Nov. 2.

The belief is prevalent in Chinese circles here that with the loss of Canton and Hankow, the centre of military importance has been shifted to the south-west, the "South China Morning Post" reported this morning.

According to the journal, well-informed Chinese here think that the Japanese now intend to occupy the eastern districts of Kwangsi province in order to weaken the Chinese resistance.

The paper further stated that it is the general belief in Chinese circles here that another attack on Kwangsi is likely to be launched from the Gulf of Tongkin with Pakhoi as the immediate objective. The Kwangtung-Kwangsi border, it was pointed out, has been heavily reinforced.

Chinese circles also believe, the paper said, that the ultimate Japanese objective is to reach Kunming. Chinese resistance, the "South China Morning Post" opined, will continue as long as General Chiang Kai-shek can depend on Kwangsi and Yunnan as a base of supplies from Indo-China and Burma.—Domei.

Dr. Hu Shih Praised In Washington

Indomitable Spirit of New Envoy Appreciated

Washington, Nov. 1.

Dr. Hu Shih, China's new Ambassador to the United States, received warm praise for his ability to handle his new task and his never-say-die spirit, in the editorial in the "Washington Star" today.

The "Washington Star" said that few, if any, Ambassadors accredited here ever entered their duties equipped with the American background of Dr. Huh Shih.

The editorial said that it was agreeable to hear "from him that the loss of Canton and Hankow does not spell China's doom."

The "Washington Star" called attention to the fact that the Chinese Nationalist Army, despite great evacuations, remains intact, while the Japanese daily sink deeper into China.

"The time, distance and attribution of all fighting are on the defender's side. Japan has won a precarious dominion in a vast domain, but China has not yet lost the war."—United Press.

Austrian Jews Coming To Far East

Italian Ships Crowded on Voyages from Trieste

London, Nov. 2.

During the past two months a new stream of Jewish emigration has been passing through Trieste, according to "The Times" correspondent there, and boarding Italian Far East liners, which are now sailing regularly with crowded Third Class and Deck passenger lists.

Most of the emigrees are Austrian Jewish families, who book passages to Colombo, Manila, Hongkong and Shanghai. Some of them are travelling as far as Kobe, where big Western firms are understood to have offered them fair chances of employment.

No restrictions have been placed on their migration by Middle Eastern and Far Eastern governments, and even crowded countries like Japan do not deny them hospitality.—Reuter.

Corrigan Rearrested Outside Court

Two Netherlanders, One Chinese Arrested

London, Nov. 2.

A dramatic sequel to the Corrigan case came yesterday when the accused was rearrested as he was stepping into his car outside the court building.

Later, Dennis Corrigan, together with Mr. Frederick Willing and his son, Mr. James Willing, who were described as Netherlanders, were accused of conspiring with Mr. Chow Ting-shu and others unknown to defraud Mr. Theodore Lafitte of £7,250. Mr. Chow was not charged and did not come before the Court.

The Netherlanders were let out on bail of £300 each upon surrendering their passports, while Corrigan was remanded in custody.—Reuter.

New War Notes For Central China

Military Scrip Issued By Japanese For Use In Occupied Areas

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

The circulation of war notes in South and Central China with the exception of Shanghai, in the place of the Bank of Japan notes which have hitherto been used in Japanese occupied regions, was enforced on November 1, according to the special correspondent of the "Shanghai Nichi Nichi."

This step was taken by the Japanese Finance Ministry, after consultation with the fighting services, in view of the lack of sufficient banking facilities to meet the rapid economic development, rehabilitation and exploitation of natural resources in South and Central China as compared with the smooth progress of the political reconstruction of these places following the fall of the Wuhan district and Canton into Japanese hands.

The correspondent stated that the finance Ministry had issued the following notification through the Japanese banks on the spot:

(1) In Central China, except Shanghai, Japanese bank notes will be replaced by the new war notes;

(2) Those who desire to purchase goods in Japanese occupied regions should change their bank notes into war notes in Shanghai or in the Japanese banks on the spot; and

(3) War notes may be changed into bank notes by obtaining permission from the resident financial commissioner of the Finance Ministry.

It was understood that war notes, estimated at present to the extent of Y.30,000,000, have been circulated in Central China.—Reuter.

Military Scrip

The Japanese public, both in Shanghai and in other parts of Central China are being requested to aid in the smooth circulation of military scrip which, since November 1, has been linked with notes issued by the Bank of Japan, the "Shanghai Mainich," local Japanese-language daily, reported yesterday morning.

Hitherto, the paper reported, the circulation of Japanese military scrip had been confined to those shops and stores especially commissioned to cater to the military, but owing to the gradual widening of their sphere of circulation, the Japanese populace is now encouraged to give the same credit to military scrip as to regular bank notes.

The smooth functioning of the currency system in the areas under Japanese occupation, the paper stressed, is the most important prerequisite to the development and rehabilitation of those areas.

"Foreign machinations," the paper claimed, "are constantly jeopardizing" the smooth circulation of Chinese currencies and consequently undermining the economic stability of Central China.

The widening of the sphere of circulation of military scrip, the paper asserted, is designed to east the currency problem and bring about an economic balance in the Japanese occupied areas.

Use of the Scrip

Questioned at yesterday's press conference, the Embassy spokesman confirmed the journal's report, but in reply to questions said that military scrip could not be used in Japan as the country was outside the sphere of military operations. These notes, however, could be exchanged at local Japanese banks for Treasury yen, or could be used in the payment for goods.

Military scrip also was used in the payment of Chinese labour and, when it was suggested that this was the introduction of a new system of currency in occupied territory, no one of the spokesmen denied it. They were mostly used in the interior for payment for Japanese goods, it was pointed out, although the interpreter said that he saw Ruby Queen cigarettes being purchased with scrip in Wuhu.

King George Accepts U.S. Invitation

"Daily Herald" Reports Letter to Be on Way

London, Nov. 2.

"King George's letter accepting President Roosevelt's invitation to pay a state visit to Washington next summer is now on its way to the White House," the "Daily Herald" announced today.

The paper added that the British Sovereigns will stay in Washington for three days and three nights, residing at the White House.

Upon their arrival in North American waters, the King and Queen will be greeted by Canadian, American, and French merchant vessels.—Havas.

The Lone Wolf, after having obtained credentials from Scotland Yard, the Surete, New York and Berlin police that he has reformed and is a man of upright character, begins operations again in Paris, much to the delight of patrons attending the Metropol Theatre yesterday. In this instance, however, he steals to right a wrong, and happily succeeds in restoring the crown jewels of Arvonne on the eve of the coronation of the boy king. Mr. Francis Lederer in the name role is suave and apparently in keeping with the general conception of what a Raffles of this type should be, while as Princess Thania, Miss Frances Drake is given a chance at dramatic honours in which she does not fail. Generally speaking greater marks should be given to Mr. Walter Kingsford for his interpretation as the rogue and aspirant to the throne. His is a generous part and he blends various shadings to a nicety. Mr. Maurice Cass, as the hotel manager, was perfectly cast, the supporting players completing the whole under well-balanced direction. "The Lone Wolf in Paris" is not one of the "near great" pictures, but is satisfying.

"Screen Snapshots," of silent days, and "Sitter Downers," with the three stooges. although of last year's vintage, brought many laughs.—F.L.T.

British Protest to Japanese

Hankow, Nov. 2.

The British Consul-General is protesting to the Japanese Consul-General today regarding certain belongings removed by the Japanese troops from residences of British Customs officials. Admiral Oikawa is expected to arrive at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but there will be no salute of guns fired either on his arrival today or the late Emperor Meiji's birthday tomorrow, as it is feared that the noise would frighten the Chinese populace. Ships on the river will not be dressed except for the display of national flags at their mastheads.—Reuter.

Britain Will Share in Rebuilding China

Sir Archibald Sinclair later said that, "in the name of justice and self-determination, Herr Hitler has added scores to the thousands of Czechs, Germans and Jews among the world's refugees, and has condemned thousands of others to concentration camps and lesser forms of tyranny and brutality.

"One by one," he continued, "in the name of appeasement in Austria and Czechoslovakia, we are handing over the keys of world power into the keeping of the most aggressive tyrants since Napoleon."

Home Defence Reviewed

The second half of the Prime Minister's speech was devoted to questions arising from the review which had been made of civil and military defences, to see what arrears or deficiencies had been revealed in the recent emergency period.

On the civil side, he declared, the review was complete, and, while it naturally showed that the preparations were far from comprehensive or perfect, nevertheless, he was of the opinion that had they been put to the test, they would have worked a great deal better than many people supposed.

The Government, however, had come to the conclusion that the whole subject of the Air-Raid Precautions had assumed such gigantic proportions and complexities that a selected Minister was required to give his whole attention to it.

Sir John Anderson, as Lord Privy Seal, would, in fact, be Minister of Civil Defence, having direct charge of air-raid precautions as well as being responsible, in consultation with the other departments concerned, for arrangements for national voluntary service.

In connection with Air-Raid Precautions, Sir John Anderson would be a member of the Committee of Imperial Defence, Mr. Chamberlain explained.

Committees, representing all departments affecting Air-Raid Precautions, would be set up as part of the organization of the Committee of Imperial Defence.

As to national service, the Government was satisfied that it was desirable and practicable to meet the need of civil defence by voluntary action, suitably organized.

The review of military, naval and air defences was not finished.

Supply Ministry Useless

In the meantime, however, Mr. Chamberlain reiterated the unwillingness of the Government to accept the proposal for a Ministry of Supply.

He argued that this would involve the use of compulsion, which employers and workers would not be ready to accept in time of peace.

The Prime Minister made the point that they were only in the third year of the rearmament programme, which was undertaken and organized as a five-year programme. To argue that because everything was not completed in three years the programme had broken down was, therefore, foolish.

Mr. Chamberlain said that he doubted if it would have been possible to squeeze a five-year programme into three years.

He admitted, however, that the review had shown the special urgency of certain parts of the programme, for which practical reinforcements were necessary if they were not to jeopardize the whole scheme.

The Government would, therefore, direct itself to those parts, and Mr. Chamberlain reminded the House once more that there would, undoubtedly, be an addition to the total cost of the programme.

Britain's Peaceful Intent

At this point, the Prime Minister turned to the animadversions, which had been heard abroad, on British rearmament, and he asked why a different standard was being applied to Great Britain in this matter.

He added, however, a repetition, which he clearly thought should have been unnecessary, of the assurances of Great Britain's peaceful intent.

"I would repeat here, categorically," Mr. Chamberlain declared, "that we have no aggressive intention against Germany or any other country.

"Our sole concern is to see the country and her Imperial communications safe and that we shall not be so weak, relatively, to other countries that our diplomacy cannot enter on discussions on an equal footing.

"There is nothing further from our minds than to enter upon a new armaments race," he said.

Mr. Chamberlain pointed out that Great Britain aimed at limitation of armaments by agreement and, in the end, at the practical abolition of armaments, but "that was looking very far ahead, and I shall not see it."

Munich Declaration and Germany

This brought the Prime Minister to his joint declaration with Herr Hitler after the Munich Conference, which, he said, seemed to have dropped out of sight.

"I, myself, feel that in that Declaration lies the possibility of a new era of peace in Europe.

"I believe, indeed, I am convinced that Herr Hitler meant it when he signed the Declaration, and I am equally convinced that the views expressed are the views of the majority of people, both in Germany and in this country.

"That being so, let there be no mistake in our policy and in our intention.

"It is our firm determination that there shall be no sitting still and waiting for peace to come. We must take active pacific steps towards that end.

"We must not wait until the crisis becomes acute before settling it. We should try to consolidate the goodwill of the four Munich Powers, and to endeavour to restore European confidence by the removal of fears and suspicions."

Balkans Trade Drive

Mr. Chamberlain rebuked Mr. Attlee for his remarks regarding the recent Balkan tour of Dr. Walther Funk, the German Minister of Economics.

He showed that closer economic relations between Germany and the countries of south-eastern Europe, based on the exchange of raw materials for manufactured products, were natural and beneficial developments to be welcomed by Great Britain, which had no desire to obtain exclusive possession of the markets of south-eastern Europe.

There was room there, the Prime Minister continued, for both Great Britain and Germany and, surely, no necessity for economic warfare.

What they were witnessing in Europe today, Mr. Chamberlain reminded the House, was readjustment of the frontiers drawn at Versailles, by peaceful means instead of by force.

Rival Blocs Unwanted

He declared that Great Britain must accustom herself to the idea that democracies and totalitarian states should not be opposed to one another in rival blocs.

They could, if they chose, work together, not merely for a settlement of differences after they had arisen, but also in consideration of a constructive programme which would facilitate international exchange of goods and improve international relations, in various ways, for the good of all.

That, Mr. Chamberlain concluded, was sometimes called a policy of appeasement, and it was to that policy the Government intended to devote itself wholeheartedly.

Palestine Questions

Numerous questions were addressed to Mr. Malcolm Macdonald, Secretary of State for the Dominions and for the Colonies, on the subject of Palestine.

Mr. Macdonald declared that the General Officer Commanding Palestine now had at his disposal such forces as were required for the purpose of restoring order, suppressing Arab bands and re-establishing civil administration in outlying districts.

This, he added, might take considerable time.

The casualties during August, September and October, he stated, were: 29 British, 144 Jews, 231 Arabs killed. The wounded numbered 75 British, 232 Jews and 179 Arabs.

It was impossible to secure complete figures of the casualties among the rebel forces, Mr. Macdonald said, but well over 400 of them were known to have been killed during these three months, and many more had been wounded.

Dealing with operations in the old city of Jerusalem, the Colonial Secretary stated that every precaution had been taken to avoid injury to innocent persons.

He added that he hoped to publish the report of the Palestine Commission shortly after the new session of Parliament, when he also hoped to make a statement on the Government's intentions.

Anglo-Italian Agreement

That the "House of Commons welcomes the intention of His Majesty's Government to bring the Agreement between Great Britain and Italy into force" will be the subject for debate in the House of Commons today, as the result of Mr. Chamberlain's statement on the Agreement yesterday.

A similar motion will be debated in the House of Lords on Thursday.—Reuter.

U.S. Navy to Make Supreme Bid

Vast Programme for Strengthening High Seas Fleets Planned

Washington, Nov. 2.

Large-scale rearmament is being prepared by the Navy Department and the plan will be submitted for approval to President Roosevelt shortly before the forthcoming session of Congress.

The main lines of the plan are:

1. Increase in the total tonnage of the American navy, bringing it beyond the limit set by Congress;

2. Strengthening of the Atlantic Squadron which will eventually reach 350,000 tons and include heavy cruisers, light cruisers, destroyer flotillas, submarines, at least three aircraft-carriers each of about 23,000 tons.

3. Strengthening of the Pacific Fleet affecting all types of units the construction of which has been approved by Congress.

The practical result would be the maintenance in Pacific waters of a fleet always stronger than the Japanese Navy while on the Atlantic a light and speedy flotilla would defend the coast without need for the heavier units to pass through the Panama Canal.

Naval circles expect Congress to pass the plan in face of fears of totalitarian states.—Havas.

Japanese Shot on Soviet Border

Alleged Encroachment By Russian Troops Subject Of New Protest

Changchun, Nov. 2.

The Japanese and Manchoukuo Govments today filed protests in Moscow against the alleged shooting of a Japanese non-commissioned officer and a private by Soviet soldiers who crossed the border near Manchuli yesterday.

According to a message received here, about 15 Soviet infantrymen crossed the border near the Chahanaola patrol station about 10 kilometres south-west of Manchuli at 10.50 o'clock yesterday morning.

The Japanese officer and private, accompanied by a sub-lieutenant, approached the border to investigate and were alleged to have been fired on by the Soviet soldiers. When the non-commissioned officer and private fell, the Soviet soldiers attempted to capture the sub-lieutenant, who repulsed them with his sword, the message said.

The sub-lieutenant went to the patrol station to make a report and when he returned to the scene of the ciash he could not find the two wounded men. They were believed to have been taken away by the Soviet soldiers, the message stated. —Domei.

Canberra, Nov. 2.

The immediate order by Australia for fifty American bombers similar to the 200 purchased by Great Britain from the United States was announced today by the Commonwealth Prime Minister, Mr. Joseph A. Ichang Residents Alarmed

Shihchiachwang, Nov. 2.

Since the fall of Canton and Hankow Chinese troops that had been operating in the Tapieh Mountain range in Honan are retreating westward in disorder, according to reports from Japanese field headquarters reaching here today.

Some disorganized units which retreated to areas around Nanyang were looting provision stores and forcibly recruiting youths, the reports said. Their conduct was said to be causing hostility among the populace of western Honan.

The Chinese 166th and 45th Divisions, which had been active on the north bank of the Yellow River, have crossed the river and are concentrating in the vicinity of Nanyang.—Domei.

Chinese Success at Yanghsin

Chungking, Nov. 2.

Chinese troops have surrounded the Japanese at Yanghsin, in south-eastern Hupeh, and have occupied Lungkang, 40 miles to the north, according to Chinese despatches received here today.

Ten Japanese officers and 300 Japanese soldiers are said to have been killed and over 100 rifles, maps and other military equipment captured in an engagement north of Lungkang.

More than 10,000 Japanese troops are stated to have been sent to Yanghsin to reinforce the defenders.

Near Tehan, Chinese reports declare, the Chinese are still holding high ground, while near Canton heavy fighting is going on south-west of Tsingyun.

The Japanese are said to be attempting to penetrate to the north in order to attack Fukan and then reach Yingtak, on the Canton-Hankow Railway, in order to cut the road to the north-east.

Severe fighting is stated to be taking place south of Samshui, where a reorganized Chinese volunteer corps is reported to be attacking the Japanese. —Reuter.

Ukrainians Demonstrate In Polish Town

Anniversary of Vanished Republic Celebrated

Warsaw, Nov. 1.

A huge Ukrainian demonstration took place in Lwow today, on the occasion of the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the foundation of the short-lived Ukrainian Republic.

After a religious ceremony at the St. Jur Greek-Orthodox Church, 1,500 young men demonstrated in the streets, shouting anti-Polish slogans. The police broke the demonstration but the youths gathered again, a few minutes later, on the Market place and marched past the City Hall stoning several windows of this building. Six demonstrators were arrested.

Students of the Polytechnical School staged a counter-demonstration and the situation remains tense.

Police detachments are patrolling the streets of the town and the neighbouring villages.—Havas.

French Franc Not To Be Devalued

Cabinet Reshuffled as M. Reynaud Takes Over Finance Portfolio

Paris, Nov. 1.

Following a lengthy Cabinet meeting it was announced here this afternoon that an important reshuffle in the composition of the French Government had been decided.

M. Paul Reynaud, Minister of Justice, is to become Minister of Finance, while M. Paul Marchandeau, Minister of Finance is to replace M. Paul Reynaud as Minister of Justice.

M. Paul Reynaud is known as one of the best financial and economic experts in this country.

M. Reynaud later received the press and made the following statement:

"I will need five days to draw up a full outline of the present economic and financial situation in France—then acts will follow immediately. For the time being, I can say only one thing: some time ago, a devaluation of the franc was an opportune measure because our prices were too high when compared with prices abroad. At that time, I did not hesitate to proclaim that truth in the face of the world. Today, I must equally clearly emphasize that the situation is different. The problem of national recovery we are facing now is an economic and financial one, and purely monetary questions are out of the limelight.

"I am sure that all Frenchmen will be eager to collaborate with the Government in common action for recovery of their country," he concluded.—Havas.

Why Posts Were Reshuffled

Paris, Nov. 1.

M. Paul Marchandeau resigned because the Premier, M. Edouard Daladier, had rejected his financial reform proposals to prevent gold hoarding and the flight of capital because of a fear that it would lead to a devaluation of foreign exchange control.

M. Reynaud, the new Minister of Finance, promised there would be no devaluation of the franc. He refused to comment on the French request to Washington for advice.

He indicated Washington feared France sought to place the United States in a position for accepting the responsibility of the fate of the tripartite monetary agreement.—United Press.

Government to Control Gold Supplies

No Purchases of Raw Metal Permitted to Jewellers

Chungking, Nov. 2.

The buying and selling of raw gold is to be governed by new regulations which the Ministry of Finance has issued to the Provincial Governments.

Jewellers may only purchase finished objects and not the native gold itself. Gold for their use must be bought through the Central Bank which is to control the prices in such transactions.

If there is no Central Bank in the district, then a local branch of the Bank of China or any of the other government banks will attend to the transactions.

Any jeweller found violating the regulations is liable to have his shop closed.

In West Szechuen a small quantity of native gold is obtained in the alluvial deposits there, while more is brought in from Sinkiang and Tibet.

The object of these regulations, apparently, is to bring these sources under the control of the Government. and to prevent such gold from being smuggled out of China.

Silver Exports Banned

The Szechuen provincial government has issued orders prohibiting the export of silver from Szechuen.—Reuter.

Mr. Richard Seaman, the British motor-racing driver, who has just announced his engagement to a German woman, is the only living Englishman to have won a European Grand Prix. The other was the late Sir Henry Segrave, who came first in the French Grand Prix in 1923. Mr. Seaman has had many narrow escapes from death when driving. On one occasion he crashed at 150 miles an hour, and in the same season broke his knee-cap, finger, and nose. Last year, on a trial run, he hit a wall while travelling at 100 m.p.h. He is said to make about £10,000 a year from racing.

B.B.C. Foreign News Broadcasts

Postmaster-General Will Report Deficiencies

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 2.

The practice of broadcasting news bulletins in French, German and Italian, which was instituted during the recent international crisis, was to be continued, said the Postmaster-General, Major G. C. Tryon, in question time in the House of Commons yesterday.

He added that news had been broadcast for some months in Spanish and Portuguese for South America, and also in Arabic.

It was at present not intended to add other languages.

The Postmaster-General undertook to represent to the British Broadcasting Corporation the points raised that the broadcasts to Italy and Germany were too sparse and scrappy.

He would also draw the B.B.C.'s attention, he concluded, to the fact that, although the broadcasts to Germany were doing a great deal of good, they were not on wavelengths suitable for the poorer people with cheaper sets.—Reuter.

Protest Over Rice Sale Rejected

Japanese Say Ownership Wrong Transferred

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

A protest against the requisitioning of rice by Japanese military authorities in Canton, filed by the International Relief Committee there through the British Consul, was rejected by the Japanese authorities, according to a message received here today.

Japanese military authorities requisitioned 5,000 bales of rice at the Liang-I warehouse on October 22 and the rice stock of the Hwa Chih and Wo Fung warehouses on October 29, the message said. The relief committee declared it had purchased the rice in question.

The Japanese military authorities have promised to pay indemnity to the rightful owner of the rice.

Britons in Canton were transferring Chinese property into their own hands, according to information received here.

Japanese authorities in Canton explained that if the proper ownership of the rice is ascertained in the future, they will pay for it.—Domei.

Japan's Economic Policy Trend

Finance Minister to Make Declaration on November 3

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

A statement enunciating Japan's financial and economic policies to meet the long-term reconstruction in China following the fall of the Wuhan cities will be issued by Mr. Seihin Ikeda, Minister of Finance, on or after November 3, it was learned today.

Six points are expected to be emphasized by the Finance Minister in his statement, these being the maintenance of the existing exchange level, increase of Japan's productive capacity, development of trade, checking of soaring commodity prices, economy in consumption and encouragement of savings and thrift.

Mr. Ikeda is also expected to appeal for further co-operation of the people and to point out that economic mobilization in Japan never will be moderated but on the contrary will be further strengthened, it was learned.—Domi.

WALKING TO WORK WAS AGONY

Crippled and Tortured by Rheumatic Feet

Hobbling to work was a slow and agonizing business for this poor woman. She thought her shoes were at fault, but the trouble was more deep-seated than that. But deep-seated as it was, Kruschen Salts removed it, as she tells here:—

"I was advised to take Kruschen Salts for a violent attack of rheumatism. I used to go to work with tears running down my cheeks, owing to the pain in my feet. It was only after buying five different pairs of shoes, and getting no comfort, that I decided the fault must be in my feet. A fellow-worker told me to take Kruschen regularly. After three bottles I was so free from pain, that they discovered me running across the workroom. I have taken the daily dose of Kruschen ever since, and have lost the rheumatism."—(Mrs.) M. W.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature to flush out these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. 11694

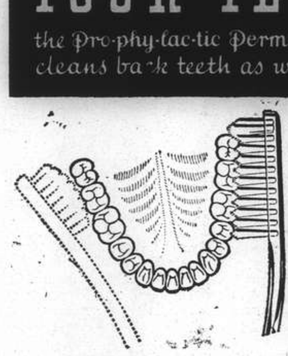
CLEAN AND PROTECT ALL YOUR TEETH
the Pro-phy-lac-tic Perma-Grip thoroughly cleans back teeth as well as front teeth



Study this diagram—see how the tufted end of the Pro-phy-lac-tic Perma-Grip reaches in and around every part of all the back teeth. Only a brush with a tufted end can do this.

Back Teeth Decay First

It is a fact that in 8 out of 10 cases, back teeth decay first. Why? Because the ordinary tooth brush does not reach and clean the back teeth. That is the reason for the big end-tuft of the Pro-phy-lac-tic Perma-Grip. It reaches the hard-to-get-at back teeth, removes every tiny food particle—cleans thoroughly, protects against decay—as no other brush can.

Pro-phy-lac-tic Perma-Grip is the only tooth brush with the exclusive Perma-Grip method of sealing the bristles in the handle firmly, securely. Insist upon genuine Pro-phy-lac-tic Perma-Grip. Look for the hyphenated name. N-51

No less than 30,000 non-combatants, says a report to the "Ta Ying Yeh Pao," have evacuated Chungking to the outlying villages since the first Japanese air raids conducted over the city some time ago. Housing problems in the outlying towns have as a result become acute, the report states.

INTEREST in Czech economic circles has been revived in the project of constructing an Oder-Danube-Canal to create a waterway connection between the Black Sea and the Baltic as this would permit the wheat grown in the south-eastern countries of Europe hitherto dependent on expensive transport by rail to Germany, Belgium and Holland, to reach their markets at a considerably less transport cost than the wheat from Canada and the Argentine.

Zimmerman Loses Final Appeal Case

Chinese Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal with Costs Against Appelant

According to a translation received in the matter of divorce and cohabitation between the appelant, Morriss Zimmerman and the appellee Freda Zimmerman. The appelant appealed against the judgment of retrial of the Kiangsu High Court Third Branch dated November 14, 1936 the Chinese Supreme Court has now dismissed this appeal. Court fees for the Court of Final Appeal to be borne by the appelant. The full judgment delivered by the Chinese Supreme Coure in Chungking on July 7, 1938 follows:—

Judgment

Reasons: The parties in this case are spouses. The appellee instituted action for divorce on the ground that the sustained mal-treatment causing impossibility to cohabit with her husband, i.e. the appellant, while the appellant brought counter-action on the ground that the appellee should cohabit with him. The Court of Appeal owing to the appellant had repeatedly extorted large sums of money from the appellee and the appellant, besides illicitly took a number of silver wares belonging to the appellee in the safe during the appellee's stay in Japan, tried to mortgage the immovable properties known as No. 10 Rue Potiere belonging to the appellee for a sum of several hundred thousand dollars in a fraudulent way, opined that the appellant had seized the personal properties of the appellee thus causing the appellee to sustain spiritually mal-treatment causing impossibility to cohabit which could not be said as without ground. Although there is still issue between the parties as to the ownership of the safe, the appellant should not take away the silverware at his own will so far the silverware therein belonged to the appellee. No matter whether the appellant's allegation is true or not that he had already returned same, the act of taking away same at his own will still could not be considered as proper.

Malicious Intent

Furthermore, the Court of Appeal, based upon the testimonies of Silby, Gonda and Saker and the allegation of the appellant's attorney in the Court of First Instance (see record of October 20, 1934) opined that the appellant had the actual malicious intent to mortgage the land and building on Rue Potiere in a fraudulent way which could not be denied by the appellant with mere empty words. Granting that the appellant had disbursed sums of money for the appellee, the appellant could recover same by lawful means, and the appellant could further ask the appellee perform if the appellee had not done her duty of conjugal assistance and there is no necessity for the appellant to dispose of the personal property of the appellee. Aside from the foregoing, custom and usage is only applicable where there is no specification in the Civil Code (Article 1 of the Civil Code). With regard to divorce, there is detailed specification in our Civil Code and it is needless to say that the parties had no right to ask the Court to deal with according to custom and usage.

Claim for Divorce

The opinion of the Court of Appeal that the claim for divorce of the appellee had already complied with the cause as specified in Paragraph 3 of Article 1052 of the Civil Code by annulling the judgment of the Court of First Instance in respect of this part and granted divorce from the appellant and also dismissed the appeal of cohabitation of the appellant is therefore not contrary to law. The several allegations of appeal cannot be considered as reasonable. Summing up the above reasoning, the appeal is unreasonable and according to Article 478, the 1st paragraph of Article 446 and Article 78, this judgment is rendered as the Synopsis.

Slayer of Aunt Given Death Sentence

Chinese Murders Woman In Local Hotel

Found guilty of the murder of his 53-year old aunt, a widow, at the Great China Hotel on August 22, a Chinese named Yue Hai-sung was sentenced to death by the First Special District Court yesterday.

According to the evidence, the murder took place at the hotel in Yu Ya Ching Road on August 22 when Yue, who was in financial difficulties over a loan of $4,500, strangled the woman and then tied a piece of rope around her neck. He escaped and found refuge in the Japanese-controlled western area of Shanghai but was later arrested in a lodging house when he entered the Settlement six weeks later.

Yue will be detained at Ward Road Gaol with other condemned men until arrangements for the execution can be made. Since early in the hostilities, it has not been found possible to carry out capital punishment owing to the disappearance of Chinese authority from Shanghai, and therefore the number of men awaiting execution is 25.

It is reported that an appeal will be lodged against the sentence.

Cherry Trees Going To Hankow

To Be Planted in Parks And Mission Compounds

Symbolic of the return of peace to Hankow, 2,500 cherry saplings, now on their way to Shanghai from Japan, will be sent to Hankow to be planted in various parks and mission compounds, the local Japanese-language daily "Shanghai Mainichi" reported yesterday morning.

The young trees will arrive here on Friday aboard the steamer Myomi Maru and will be sent to the authorities of Special Japanese Military Missions in Hankow.

The unique plan of planting cherry trees in the conquered areas was evolved by a certain resident in Hongkew, the paper said. It added that some trees also have been planted in Hangchow.

OBITUARIES

Mr. Ian Graham

"Old China Hands" still remaining in Shanghai and who were in residence here during the first decade of this century, as well as many now living in retirement in Great Britain and other countries, will learn with regret of the death of Mr. Ian Graham which occurred in an Edinburgh nursing home on September 24.

Mr. Graham came out to China about the year 1900 for the firm of Messrs. Bradley & Co., Swatow, and was sent to open an office for them in Shanghai about 1903. He worked in it single-handed for quite a lengthy period, and a former business associate has recalled how astonished he always was at the amount of work that Ian was able to get through, most of the letters, indents etc. being written in his own handwriting. He went on leave about 1908, afterwards returning to Swatow for several years. He left Bradley & Co.'s employ about 1911, going to Karachi, India, to take up a position there. Remaining in Karachi until about eighteen months ago, he then retired to his native city of Edinburgh where he had since resided.

While in Shanghai, Ian was a keen member of "A" Company, and was also something of a golfer. He enjoyed much popularity among a wide circle of friends. The possessor of a merry and frolicsome disposition, he was always the ringleader when there happened to be a "lark" on hand, but the larks in these far-distant days were usaully of an innocuous nature which did no harm to anyone.

The news of Mr. Graham's passing will be received with regret by those who knew him intimately, both here and elsewhere.—D. MacD.

Bomb Kills Man, Injures Another

World Book Co. Premises In Foochow Road Scene Of Outrage

A young Chinese shop assistant was fatally injured and another wounded less seriously yesterday morning when a bomb contained in a parcel exploded at the World Book Co., Ltd., 290 Foochow Road. The parcel had been left at the shop three days previously by a Chinese who made a small purchase. As the man did not call for it, two assistants proceeded to open it at 10.10 o'clock, with the result that the contents exploded while in the hands of one of them.

He suffered such serious injuries that he died a few hours afterwards in the Lester Hospital. The other injured man was peppered with fragments of the bomb in the face, chest and hands. He is expected to recover fully.

The bomb was fashioned from books the inside of which had been hollowed out.

Chief Inspector A. H. Chamberlain, Detective-Inspector G. Bennett and other police from Louza Station hurried to the scene as soon as the alarm had been sounded and questioned several witnesses concerning the man who had left the death-dealing parcel.

Last night the management of the Company issued a statement saying that their printing plant in Yangtszepoo had been occupied by Japanese military since last year and that it was still so occupied despite the fact that it had been leased, last July, to the Associated American Industries, Incorporated, a firm with offices in Hamilton House.

The management further stated that no warning preceded the placing of the bomb on October 30.

Robbers Get $200 Loot In Shanhaikwan Road

A gang of four Chinese carrying two pistols robbed a house at 133-135 Shanhaikwan Road yesterday morning shortly after 7 o'clock. They escaped with loot of $200, consisting of money, jewellery and clothing.

Early yesterday morning a Japanese named Y. Nishikawa reported that he had been robbed, the previous evening, of a wallet containing $40. He said he was walking in Kan Woo Li, off Fokien Road, when he was held up by three unarmed Chinese.

Italian Garrison Withdrawal

Local Authorities Not Yet Informed of Government's Intention

The Italian authorities in Shanghai had not been notified up to a late hour yesterday of the intention of their Government to withdraw the present garrison, the Savoy Grenadiers, from Shanghai.

Such a report had been received in Shanghai from Tokyo on Tuesday, when it was said that the intended withdrawal was in the nature of a goodwill gesture towards Japan.

The Savoy Grenadiers, a battalion numbering about 700 men, arrived here during the early part of last year's hostilities. They had previously served in the Abyssinian campaign.

The Italian cruiser Raymondo Montecuccoli has left her station in Far Eastern waters, but another Italian warship, the Colleoni, is on her way to Shanghai from Italy.

Instructions from Rome regarding the Grenadiers of Savoy are expected by the local Italian authorities.

The Council recognises to the full the splendid service which the Police Force consistently renders to the community in the preservation of law and order in the Settlement, and extends its special thanks to those members of the regular Force and of the Police Specials whose faithful service for so many years and whose courageous conduct when duty dictates have earned for them the well merited bestowal of the Long Service and Distinguished Conduct Medals which were awarded.

Chinese Accused of Telephone Frauds

Ex-Employee Extorts Money From Subscribers

A long list of cases of fraud in connection with the telephone service was quoted against a young Chinese named Ling Vung-kwong at the First Special District Court yesterday when he was charged by Mr. Paul L. Tsiang, Municipal Advocate, on four counts of fraud.

According to the evidence, Ling posed as an employee of the Shanghai Telephone Company and visited the premises of Chinese subscribers. On a variety of pretexts he was able to raise money by extortion, but after long investigation he was finally arrested at 70-357 Weihaiwei Road trying to get money from the occupant.

Ling, who is a former employee of the Telephone Company, was remanded for a week to enable the police to continue investigations.

Seabiscuit Beats War Admiral In Thrilling Special Race

Charles Howard's Horse Now Acknowledged Greatest In America ; New Record Time for Distance

Pimlico, Nov. 1.

CHARLES S. Howard's Seabiscuit became the greatest horse in America today by beating Sam D. Riddle's War Admiral in a special U.S.$100,000 match race. Seabiscuit, biggest money winner in recent years, forged into a commanding lead on the turn of the thrilling race and finished a winner by four lengths in the new record time of 1 minute 56⅘ seconds. The new time for the 1 mile 6-furlong course was exactly ⅘ of a second faster than the previous standard set by Pompoon.

The easy victory scored by Seabiscuit ended a two-year controversy as to which horse should gain the title of America's outstanding turf animal.

It was the first time that the two great horse met, although they were scheduled on three separate occasions to clash this year.

Twice Seabiscuit failed to start against War Admiral because of last-minute injuries. Even plans for a U.S.$100,000 match race in September were cancelled.

War Admiral, which was to have raced against Seabiscuit in the Massachusetts Handicap last June, lost his first event in that handicap to Busyk. It was the first defeat suffered by War Admiral since October 10, 1936.

Both Champions

War Admiral, triple-crown champion and three-year-old champion in 1937, won all events in 1937, while Seabiscuit took eleven races out 14 to become the top money winner.

By winning the match race, Seabiscuit came within a stone's throw of the all-time record of U.S.$376,744 won by the great Sun Beau.

Although War Admiral took the lead, Seabiscuit forged ahead after crossing the judge's stand.

The prize money winner led by two lengths and one quarter after which it looked as if War Admiral would overtake the triple-champion.

Halfway round the track, Seabiscuit again pulled away and led by two lengths. War Admiral challenged the Howard horse.

Three-quarters of the way around, they were neck-and-neck, but as they came around the turn Seabiscuit led by a head.

Crowd Becomes Frantic

The crowd went frantic as War Admiral responded and challenged again, but Seabiscuit continued to keep a head's lead until the completion of the first mile. Seabiscuit then uncorked a rare burst of speed in the stretch. He gained with every stride and finished a grand winner, four lengths to the good.

Punters who picked Seabiscuit to win were rewarded with U.S.$6.40.

James E. "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, trainer of two Kentucky Derby winners and former trainer of Seabiscuit, was jubilant over the victory of the 1937 top money winner.

He predicted that Seabiscuit would win. He said that "Seabiscuit has raced out of the bunch, been bumped around, and still gone on to win. War Admiral, on the other hand, has not had to come out of the pack. If the two get together it will be a matter if which one wears down, and I am sure Seabiscuit will win."—United Press.

Britain Sending Strong Polo Team to U.S.

America Has Three Ten Goal Men Ready

New York, Oct. 30.

American Polo circles expect Great Britain to provide serious competition when the two countries meet at Meadow Brook, Long Island, in June 1939 for the International Cup—at present held by America.

The British pony string, it is thought here, will be shipped to this country soon and tournaments in both America and England will probably have a direct bearing on the selection of the international squads.

It is believed that the British will rely heavily upon players with experience as well as handicap ratings in this country, including the Roark brothers, Eric Tyrrell-Martin and Gerald Balding. The Australian star, Robert Skene, is also expected to join the challengers.

America has three ten-goal men as a nucleus for her defence of the cup. They are Tommy Hitchcock, Steward Inglehart and Cecil Smith.

Other possibilities are Eric Bedley, Mike Phipps and Winston Guest. The latter three teamed with Inglehart to beat England in the last of the cup series, in London in 1936.—Reuter.

Krieger Wins World Middleweight Crown

Hostak of Seattle Beaten On Points; 15 Rounds

Seattle, Nov. 2.

Solly Krieger, of Brooklyn, won the world's middleweight boxing title today by defeating Al Hostak, of Seattle, on points in a fifteen-round bout.

The result astounded experts, who had picked hardpunching Hostak to win easily.

Hostak was badly battered by Krieger's infighting tactics and took only two rounds. The Brooklyn lad was given ten rounds, while the remaining three were even.—Reuter.

"Dutch" Clark Hangs Up New Record

Detroit, Oct. 30.

Earl "Dutch" Clark, former Colorado star who for six seasons has been coach and captain of the Detroit Lions National League team, set a new league record today when he booted a field goal against the Chicago Bears to set an individual aggregate mark of 304 points.

Clark's record is outstanding, since it eclipses the mark established by Verne Llewellyn of the Green Bay Packers, who ran up 301 points, but took nine seasons to do so.

Clark has hung up his record of 304 in only six seasons.—United Press.

American Sailor Wins Service Golf Match

Marines, Seaforths Bow to Superior Skill

Using a total of 152 strokes over a course of 36 holes at the Race Course, Hallick, U.S.S. Augusta Aerologist Second Class, won the Shanghai All-Service Medal Play Golf Tournament which was sponsored by the Navy Y.M.C.A. yesterday through courtesy of the Recreation Grounds Committee.

The competition involved no less than 21 golfers, ten from the U.S.S. Augusta, six from the Seaforth Highlanders, four from the Fourth U.S. Marines and one from the U.S.S. Isabel.

Hallick was unquestionably the most skilful golfer. Barber of the Marines, who trailed the champion by a margin of 14 strokes, gave an impressive showing with a score of 79 before lunch and appeared to be the only one to have the possibility of upsetting the leader. Unfortunately, he wilted in the first nine holes in the afternoon, scoring 47, and nearly lost the runner-up position to Olson.

Do Mayo, another Marine contender, was fourth with 169 while De Pord of the Augusta placed fifth with 171. W. Clarke and Jones of the Seaforths came in next with respective scores of 174 and 176 while Wasilenko from the Isabel finished 17th with 202.

Full results follow:—

Naval Victory Scored Over Zero Club

Four Golf Matches Played In Drenching Rain

In a bitterly contested golf match in the pouring rain at the Hungjao course yesterday afternoon, H.M.S. Birmingham defeated the Zero Club by 2½ points. Despite the wet atmosphere the affair was described as most enjoyable. The results of the four matches were:

Lt.-Cmdr. Norman and Lt. Dickie defeated Lovatt and Wooley of the Zero Club, gaining 1½ point.

Cmdr. Lees and Lt.-Cmdr. Moore defeated Piercy and Fuller of the Zero Club, gaining 1½ point.

Cmdr. Brown and Lt. Lewis finished all square against Reader-Harris and Miners.

Lt.-Cmdr. Dathan and Lt. Brown lost to Hardman and Mitchell, the latter gaining ½ point.

Form Studied on Local Track

Antonio Gallops Mile in Fast Time ; Attractive Work by Woodbridge

"By Ching"

Yesterday morning the very big attendance to witness the training gallops being done by ponies that will be seen racing on Saturday could not have been disappointed in what they saw. Neither could they have any complaint about the weather, for it was a beautiful late October morning with a bite in the air that was refreshing without being uncomfortable.

The grass track was open and on it many fast training gallops were done, and I think it more than likely that those on the look-out to spot possible winners for Saturday may have seen more than one pony showing form at the finish of his gallop that should mean he will be a winner next time out.

Woodbridge finished his 1¼ mile gallop with a most attractive last quarter done in his best style in 30.4. Rye gave a good impression at the finish of his ¾ mile, done in 1.37, last quarter 30, moving like a machine that is well oiled and working smoothly.

Un Un Un (J.K.B.) and Sparkfoot (G.F.G.) did one mile together in 2.15.4., last quarter 32. I heard it being said by a knowing one watching the gallop that Un Un Un would win the 2-mile race on Saturday-however, I think I shall be able to put a more likely one forward as my selection.

White Wine (owner), White Parade (Boy) went 1 mile in company, keeping alongside one another all the way, doing the mile in 2.15, last quarter 32.4, with White Parade cantering at the finish. Frostylight in company also did 1 mile in 2.15, his last quarter being 31.3.

Felixstowe (A.F.C.) went 1¼ mile in 2.59, coming home the last quarter in 30.4, moving well. Sumatra (F.M.) only went ¾ mile, doing it in 1.40.1, last quarter 30.2.

Port Bradda, who has a great chance of being a winner on Saturday, went 1¼ mile in 2.56.4., last quarter 32.2., finishing well.

Antonio (F.N.) put up a fast mile, doing it in 2.13.2., last quarter 31.2 He may be seen out as a starter in Monday's 1¾ mile griffin classic, which, if so inclined, he can make a fast-run race.

Cordon Rouge (B.L.) covered his mile in 2.16.1., moving very well when doing the last quarter in 30.1. Magic Eve (Boy) with Cordon Bleu (H.M.) did his mile in 2.16, last quarter 31.1, the griffin finishing better than he did in his last Saturday's race Rain (H.M.) started off his mile gallop with the first ¾ mile in 1.40.3., but made rough work of it when doing the last quarter in 35.2., his mile being 2.16.1. Night Express on the inside track did his ¾ mile in 1.35.4., last quarter 32.2.

On Saturday there is a mile race, in which, though not a handicap—due to conditions of the race—ponies can weigh out with from 3 to 15 lb. allowance. Many of the best class ponies are entered, including Gold Vase, who yesterday did ¾ mile in 1.35, last quarter 30.

In Saturday's "North-China Daily News" I will run over prospects for the day's racing and try to point to another Brave Raider as I did in my last week's notes when coupling him with Raibais.

World Bantam Champion Fights Tonight

Sixto Escobar Favoured To Knock Out Hook

Toronto, Nov. 1.

Sixto Escobar, bantamweight champion of the world, was quoted as a 5-3 favourite here today to defeat Henry Hook of Indianapolis in a ten round non-title fight tonight.

A crowd of 10,000 is forecast for the event, the most important boxing match Toronto has had in some months.

Escobar gained undisputed recognition as bantamweight champion last year when he knocked out Harry Jeffra in nine rounds before a huge crowd in his native Puerto Rico.—United Press.

Football Pools Inquiry Move Quashed

Commons Told Question Part of Betting Problem

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, Nov. 2.

In answer to questions in the House of Commons as to the desirability of setting up an inquiry committee to look into the operation of football pools, Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, replied that there is apparently no opportunity at present.

He said that this matter is allied to the bigger problem of off-the-course betting.—Reuter.

TRAINING GALLOPS

THE training times of Shanghai's racing ponies are being followed with even greater interest with the approach of the Autumn Champions next week. Early yesterday morning a large gathering was on hand at the rails to watch critically the form shown in the gallops. The times recorded here are one to two seconds slower than actual times for the distance owing to the fact that special training rails were out in the middle of the grass course.

Eight Knockdowns In Four Rounds

New York, Nov. 1.

Bob Pastor, former college football star who has been carving a noteworthy niche for himself as a heavyweight of prominence since going the distance with Joe Louis, added further to his laurels here tonight when he knocked out George "Big Boy" Brackley in the fourth round of a fight scheduled to go ten frames. Pastor had Brackley on the canvas eight times before he could keep him there for the count. The former gridder, who is being groomed for a possible match with Max Baer, weighed 194½, while Brackley came in at 231.—United Press.

Armstrong-Garcia Fight Postponed

New York, Nov. 2.

The bout for tonight between Henry Armstrong and Ceferino Garcia, of the Philippines, for the welterweight championship of the world has been postponed because the negro holder injured his spine during final training and will be unable to fight for at least three weeks.—Reuter.

New Record of Women's 100-Metre Backstroke

Copenhagen, Nov. 2.

A new world record of the women's 100-metre backstroke was set up last night by Kor Kint, Holland, with one minute, 13.5 seconds. The former holder of this record was Nida Senff, Holland, with one minute, 13.6 seconds.—Trans-Ocean.

Hungjao Women Golfers Regain Burnie Cup

Shanghai Club Team Lose By Five Matches to Two

The coveted Burnie Cup changed hands yesterday morning when the ladies of the Hungjao Golf Club defeated those of the Shanghai Golf Club by five matches to two in an interesting contest over a course of 18 holes.

Mrs. F. G. Harrison, first player up, scored an impressive victory over Miss Ross and led a parade of four successive wins for Hungjao. Mme. Leffond was the next winner over Mrs. Crowe while Mrs. Rigden and Mrs. Buyers followed suit with victories over Mrs. Bourne and Mrs. Possnecke, respectively.

In the fifth pair Hungjao's winning streak was stopped when Mrs. Gubb lost to Mrs. Harper. Mrs. Burton gained the fifth point for the victors by beating Mrs. Gordon. In the seventh and last match Hungjao again faltered as Mrs. Davis failed against Mrs. Germ.

Rugger Prospects This Week-end

Seaforths Look Dangerous; Good Game Foreseen on Sunday Afternoon

Rugby is gradually coming into its own at last and with the completion of the four fixtures scheduled for this week-end, local enthusiasts will be in a position to judge the playing strength of Shanghai's more prominent sides. It is anticipated that the Club will very shortly receive strenuous opposition in representative games from the British, French and American service units and while no squads from the Fourth U.S. Marines are appearing this week, the British and French teams will most certainly be out to create a favourable impression on their first appearances of the season.

At 2.30 p.m. on Saturday the Police meet the Area Details in what should be a closely fought game. The former will probably hold an advantage in the scrum with their heavy pack, but the soldiers, with such sterling players as Sgt. Hamlin, Driver Woods and Captain Barclay among the backs may cause the Police defence a lot of trouble.

The same afternoon at 3.15 p.m. a Club XV will clash with H.M.S. Birmingham, the British cruiser now stationed in this port, in what should prove to be a most interesting match. The Club team is well balanced in all departments and contains most of the players who gained such a comfortable victory over the Police last Saturday. The few changes that have been made have, if anything, strengthened both the attack and defence, St. Louis in particular, at scrum-half, being a most useful man to have on any side.

On Sunday the Seaforths clash with the French Forces at 2.30 p.m. and here again a well-worth while game is likely to be seen. The Army side, which played in Hongkong last year, was considered a very useful team in the Colony and although nearly half of the first fifteen did not come to Shanghai, necessitating the rebuilding of the side, its easy victory last Thursday over the Area Details by an overwhelming score, indicates that the Scots are likely to have more than average success this winter.

Outstanding among their players is Lance-Corporal Rainey, the stand-off, who, a very few seasons ago, played regularly for the Hampshire County 1st XV. The captain, Lieut. R. D. MacLaglen, who plays at scrum-half, is also reputed to be a fine exponent of the game and local teams may find this pair doing considerable damage before the season is very old. The French Forces are being drawn from the Navy, Army and Police and while little is known of their capabilities, they are expected to put up a good showing.

The best match of the week-end would appear to be that commencing at 3.15 p.m. on Sunday when two powerful Club sides meet. Known as the Captain's and Vice-Captain's Fifteens and made up from the best talent available, the two teams should be able to give local followers of the game a good idea of what the constitution of Shanghai's premier team is likely to be.

Ernie Lombardi Wins Baseball Honour

Chosen as Most Valuable National Leaguer

New York, Nov. 1.

A selected committee of twenty-four members of the Baseball Writers of America today voted that Ernie Lombardi, hard-hitting Cincinati red catcher, was the most valuable player in the National League in the race concluded last month.

Lombardi was accorded this enviable distinction by a total of 229 points out of a possible 336.

By an odd coincidence, the maximum possible point total of 336 is registered by the Redleg backstop.

Bill Lee of the Chicago Cubs, mainstay of the Bruin pitching staff, was identical to the final batting average voted second place with 166 points, while Arky Vaughn, Pittsburgh Pirate shortstop, took third with 163.

McCormick Fourth

Frank McCormick, outstanding Red rookie, was fourth with 130.

Ten writers gave Lombardi first place, while five gave the position to Bill Lee and an identical number gave it to Vaughan.

Single first place votes went to Mace Brown of the Pirates, Frank McCormick of the Reds, Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs, and Mel Ott of the New York Giants.—United Press.

Foreign Companies in Central China to Be Encouraged

Mr. Kenji Kodama, President of Japanese Charter Combine, Gives Views; Capital Sought from Abroad

Tokyo, Oct. 31.

MR. Kenji Kodama, ex-president of the Yokohama Specie Bank and newly appointed president of the Central China Development Co., in an interview here promised that foreign companies would be encouraged to resume their normal activities in Central China as soon as circumstances permitted.

Mr. Kodama is too closely in touch with the principal world money markets to expect foreign financiers to supply funds directly for the rehabilitation of the areas Japan has occupied in China, but as president of the new company he will seek to pave the way for foreign capitalists who are or might be interested in enterprises in the Yangtze Valley.

Foreign businessmen here and in China who knew him as the head of Japan's principal exchange bank consider the choice of Mr. Kodoma for this delicate task a happy one. It is generally believed he will succeed at least in alleviating the hardships under which non-Japanese concerns in Central China are operating at present.

Although companies of all nationalities are to be encouraged quickly to resume their businesses in the central provinces, Mr. Kodama said the war against Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government might go on "for years." He attempted no prediction in this respect, but his point was that Japan was in position to continue the conflict for several years if necesary to eliminate Chiang, the Kuomintang Party and the Chinese Communists, who here are considered the chief instigators of anti-Japanese sentiment in China.

Japan's Dying Export Trade

Foreshadowing perhaps the adoption of still further measures to stimulate Japan's dwindling export trade, Mr. Kodama emphasized the vital necessity for this country of bringing the total sales of Japanese goods abroad as near as possible to the sum of Japan's expenditures for essential foreign goods. The reduction of her adverse trade balance which has been achieved recently has been the result, he pointed out, merely of cutting imports down more than enough to keep pace with the diescending export curve.

With an annual gold production of approximately 200 million yen, he said, Japan can easily off-set an adverse trade balance of this amount, and he held the opinion that her present gold reserves are adequate to withstand even a greater drain than that for some time to come.

Japan Lacks Capital

However, the quick development of the areas in China for which Japan has now assumed responsibility is certain to require more capital than this country possibly can provide. The effort to acquire part of this through increased exports is expected therefore to be intensified.

Mr. Kodama expressed confidence that the present exchange rate of the yen could be maintained without difficulty. Commenting on the slump in the yen in occupied areas of China, where the rate recently has been around 17 U.S. cents compared with the official rate of around 27 U.S. cents maintained here, Mr. Kodama said the yen now circulating in China gradually would be withdrawn, whereupon the present disparity would disappear.—United Press.

First Women Lawyers Called in Japan

Leader of Pioneer Trio Tells of Aim in Life

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

For the first time in Japan three young women, whose ages range from 24 to 28, appeared before the bar in Tokyo as full-fledged lawyers. Miss Masako Tanaka, one of the trio, declared she would champion the woman's cause since in her opinion tragedies to women sometimes arise from only a slight lack of legal knowledge. Therefore she would become an adviser to women.

The status of wives in Japan is much lower than that of husbands while motherhood needs better legal protection, according to Miss Tanaka who said she was preparing to practice law immediately.—Domei.

Shanghai Fighting to Be Filmed

Part Played by Japanese Civilians Included

The heroic work done by Japanese civilians in Shanghai during the hostilities around the city last year will be an integral and important part of the new motion picture film which is being sponsored by the Navy Ministry and produced by the Toho Film Corporation, the "Shanghai Mainichi," local Japanese daily, reported yesterday.

Although the picture will be entitled "The Special Japanese Naval Landing Party in Shanghai," arrangements have been made to include the various activities of Japanese civilians during those crucial days, the paper reported.

Civilian Japanese, the paper stressed, played an important role in the hostilities, first in helping the Naval Landing Party, and then the regular army.

Mr. Ichizo Kobayashi, president of the Toho Film Corporation, who is now here to make arrangements for the production of the vehicle, conferred on Tuesday with leading members of the Japanese communities in Shanghai at the Japan Club.

All "extras", it was reported, will be recruited from the members of the Japanese community here. Location work, the papers stated, will begin next Saturday and continue for ten days.

Street fighting scenes will be re-enacted and extras will erect breastworks and sandbag barricades, the paper reported.

New Anglo-Egypt Textile Accord

Lancashire Benefits; Heavy Drop in Italian Exports Arranged by Agreement

Cairo, Nov. 2.

The basis of an agreement is understood to have been reached, by which Lancashire's proportion of Egyptian textile imports will be increased.

The agreement is reported to provide:

1. That the total output of Egypt's national textile industry is to be deducted from the total national consumption. The remainder will be divided among all countries proportionate to their imports of Egyptian raw cotton, on a basis of the average for the last three years;
2. That this proportion will be revised yearly, according to the increase in the Egyptian national output;
3. That the share of each country, which increases its purchases of Egyptian cotton after one year, is to be increased accordingly;

There would be no reductions in tariffs.

Under the agreement, it is understood that British exports to Egypt will be increased from 19 to 32.8 per cent. and Italy's exports will drop from 42 to 10.7 per cent.

The agreement, it is stated, will be signed on November 3, after which it will be submitted to the Egyptian Cabinet.—Reuter.

Herr Hitler May Offer Arms Limit Plan

Britain to Have Major Navy, Equal Air Force

Paris, Nov. 1.

Herr Adolf Hitler was preparing to propose a ceiling for Anglo-French and Italo-German rearmament, envisaging pacific co-operation in the "spirt of the Munich peace conference," diplomatic circles reported here today.

The newspaper "Excelsior" said the plan would permit all nations to reach the level of the present best-armed nations.

For example, the newspaper said, the plan would permit Britain Italy and France to build their aerial force to a strength equal to Germany's air arm. It would also permit Germany to increase her naval strength to equal France's power, although Britain would be allowed to possess the strongest navy because of her Empire responsibilities, the "Excelsior" said.—United Press.

Meiji Anniversary Celebration

Local Japanese Holding Observances Today; Meet at Consulate

Preparations were being completed for the elaborate celebrations to be held in Shanghai today by local Japanese on the occasion of the birthday anniversary of the late Emperor Meiji, called by historians as the founder of modern Japan.

This year's celebrations, according to local Japanese press reports yesterday morning, are doubly significant in that the anniversary coincides with the festivities marking the fall of the Wuhan cities.

Local Japanese, the press reported, will assemble at the Japanese Consulate-General from nine to 10.30 o'clock this morning in order to offer homage to the late Emperor Meiji and his consort, and also to Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako.

All Japanese schools administered by the Residents' Corporation, the papers said, will hold celebrations while the majority of Japanese are expected to assemble in the compound of the Central Primary School where a special celebration sponsored by the Japanese Residents' Corporation will be held.

A special Shinto service will be held at the Shanghai Shrine in memory of the late Emperor Meiji from 10.30 this morning, and the general public has been invited to participate, the press reported.

A grand celebration for the fall of Hankow, in which Japanese officials and officials of the new "Reformed Government," as well as civilians will participate, will be held at the Central Japanese Primary School at 12.30 Thursday afternoon, the papers further reported.

Student Terrorist Goes to Gaol

Attempt to Extort $50,000 From Relative

Charged with an attempt to extort money from a wealthy relative by means of a threatening letter, a young architectural student named Ng Tsung-ding was sentenced to ten months' imprisonment by the First Special District Court yesterday.

The youth, posing as a "student terrorist," wrote his relative a letter demanding $50,000 with implied threats if the money was not forthcoming. Later, he reduced the demand to $1,000, but by a clever subterfuge Chinese detectives delivered a basket of bananas wherein the money was supposed to be hidden and arrested the youth.

After worshipping en masse at the Shrine, and at the Yasukuni Shrine on Kudan Hill, the students marched to the spacious plaza in front of the Imperial Palace to pay their respects to the Emperor. Later, the parade wound its way to the War Office and Navy Office where three "Banzais" were offered.

Last night, 50,000 citizens staged a giant lantern parade through the streets of the capital.—Domei.

London Stocks

Tuesday's Closing Quotations

London, Nov. 1.

After displaying a quietly easier trend during most of the session, prices on the Stock Exchange today rallied under the lead of Kaffirs, for which local support was forthcoming and which was followed by a Johannesburg demand. International issues were good, while oils ruled steadier. British gilt-edged securities, although recovering, finished fractionally lower. —Reuter.

New York Stocks

Tuesday's Closing Quotations

New York, Nov. 1.

Stock prices on Wall Street today finished with moves of about 1 point either way. Early moderate advances attracted profit taking, but the market turned dull on a reactionary tendency. Rails were supported on the belief that the rail problems will receive sympathetic treatment by the Government. Steels showed resistance, and the opinion is expressed that the majority of steel companies are operating profitably around the current rate of mill activity. Meanwhile, many traders are holding off in view of the approaching elections. Sentiment appears to favour a substantial Republican gain, which many expect should make for a favourable stock market. The turnover today amounted to 1,280,000 shares.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Although business conditions continue to be favourable, traders on the Stock Exchange today adopted a cautious attitude. The rally in steels did not attract any new buying, after which the market turned irregular. Rails were helped by hopes of Government aid. Standard Oil of New Jersey declared a dividend of 3 shares for each 200 held, plus a semi-annual cash dividend of 50 cents per share. Favourable automobile news did not aid motors. The theory is held by some operators that business gains have been over-discounted, while many took profits on rises in order to get their accounts into shape before Election and Armistice Day holidays next week. However, pressure was not severe, although coppers were weak, because of softening export prices. Rails held steady, while several steel issues touched new highs for the year, but then eventually lost most of their earlier gains. Some rail equipment shares were strong, while several special issues moved up to new high ground for the year. Motors ruled easier.

In the Bond market, Government issues ruled irregular, whilst irregular conditions also prevailed on the Curb Exchange.

U.S. Commodities

Tuesday's Closing Quotations

New York, Nov. 1.

The cotton market early advanced on trade and foreign buying, covering and higher Wall Street advices, but then reacted on liquidation. Later, some scattered buying was offset by commission house selling and lower foreign cables. Finally, with operators continuing largely to remain on the side lines the market closed quiet and narrow, with quotations ranging from 2 points down to 2 points up.

Prices in the rubber market early advanced on demand accredited to London dealers and factory interests, which encouraged local and commission house buying and some short covering. Finally, the market partially reacted on persistent dealer offerings. At the last call over, gains of 14 to 16 points were recorded.

Beneficial rains in the American and Canadian grain belts brought out general selling in the Chicago Wheat Pit today, after early steadiness. Later, quotations further declined on the Bureau of Economics predictions of a continued low price level and a poor export outlook, coupled with the heaviness of Winnipeg which tended to increase bearishness. At the final bell, losses of 1 to 1⅜ cents were registered.

The sugar market advanced on Cuban, trade and new buying and covering, on reports that Japan is seeking large amounts of Java sugar, and the firmness of London advices. Finally, the market partially reacted on hedge selling and profit taking. At the close, quotations were from a ½ to 1 point up.

Prices in the silk market eased on importer selling and commission house liquidation, which were induced by lower cables and disappointing October deliveries. Buyers were cautious. The opinion is expressed that some deliveries were probably held over for November. Closing quotations were from 2½ to 4 cents down.

Possibilities of Rail Strike

Washington, Nov. 1.

The possibilities of a railway strike diminished today as presidents of 139 class 1 railroads were summoned to attend a special meeting at Chicago on Friday.

It was unofficially indicated that the railroads would abandon their proposed wage cut fight to enable them to begin work immediately on a joint management and labour rehabilitation programme which the Administration would support in the next session of the Congress.

Railroad officials said that the factors indicating that there would be a cancellation of the pay cut were the adverse report of the Roosevelt Fact Finding Board, the threat of a strike by the railway brotherhoods and President Roosevelt's offer to support constructive railway legislative proposals.—United Press.

Buick Plans Big Programme

Flint, Nov. 1.

The Buick Company announced today that it was launching the largest manufacturing programme in the company's history.

Buick officials said that for the next two months the company would operate at capacity production and reach a new peak of employment.

They announced that in October they had purchased 26,000 tons of steel. The largest single month's commitment in many years. The company expects to manufacture 56,000 automobiles in November and December as a result of a "heavy demand."—United Press.

Reductions on W.P.A. Rolls

Washington, Nov. 1.

Mr. Aubrey Williams, Deputy Administrator of the Work Progress Administration, predicted today that there would be material reductions on the work relief rolls provided agricultural conditions did not offset the industrial gains.

He said that 228,000 left W.P.A. jobs in September and most of those who left accepted private employment. He said that 194,500 left in August for private jobs.—United Press.

Cotton Export Ban To Be Lifted

Tokyo, Nov. 2.

A ban on exports of cotton piece goods to China, which has been enforced since June for the purpose of improving Japan's trade balance, will be lifted in the middle of this month, it was announced last night.

The Association of Cotton Piece Goods Exporters to East Asiatic Countries will ship cotton piece goods which it had been purchasing from manufacturers in accordance with official restrictions on exports.—Domei.

Berlin Bourse

Berlin, Nov. 1.

There was a slight decline in price levels on the share market today but the general tendency continued to be friendly. With buying activity increasing as the day's session proceeded, a marked recovery took place, mainly in mining issues which advanced an average of ½ point.

Towards the close of the session prices however declined slightly again.—Trans-Ocean.

German-Born American Gives Testimony

New York, Oct. 31.

Mr. Martin Schade, German-born American renting agent, testified in the Federal Court today in the Federal trial against four alleged spies in the pay of Germany that Karl Schlueter, seaman of the liner Europa, had asked him to obtain photographs of American aeroplanes.

Schlueter has been named as the "pay-off man" for the German espionage service in the United States. He was first mentioned by Guenther Rumrich, one of the four standing trial and who has turned state's evidence. Other witnesses also mentioned Schlueter as the person who handled the finances for the alleged German spies in the United States.
